AUTUMN

Bare walls and shining floors. Many new faces, but in the most familiar places. "Is everything set up?" "Have we forgotten anything?" These were last minute thoughts. As the summer closed, the empty halls came to life with students restlessly awaiting the upcoming year.

At the time, we were enthusiastic but unaware of what lay ahead. Surely no-one could have predicted the outrageous increase in students, and who would have such an awesome sports season? With emotions tensed, we managed to settle down once again to the day routine of school. Yes, fall was well under way and we had one commonality, we were Mighty Marauders, and we were alive and on the move.

Coronation Colors Worlds With Dreams

The auditorium buzzed with tiny, ex cited voices as Mrs. Jean Boris wel comed everyone. Host Garrit Hanso and Hostess Brenda Wilde then recog nized special quests and alumni. Mu sic followed as Leila Campbell and Be Parry sang "Without You."

The Homecoming Court and thei escorts were then introduced as eac couple paraded down the flowere path. Each nervously took a seat, awaiting the call of the Honor Court.

Before this happened, "A Time For Us" was sung by Larry Lindstrand to the quiet audience. This silence continued as Garrit and Brenda read off the names of the Honor Court. Each girl slowly proceeded to her awaiting seat at the throne: Debbie Curran, Carla Larsen, Sue Piasecki, Julie Romo and Kathy Stephanini.

Nerves were becoming tenser but were soothed by "Reunited," sung by Kris Zimmerman and Rick Lindstrand. Then, with five finalists remaining, the host and hostess approached the stand with the names of the princesses: Fourth princess, Kristy Soderman; third, Renee Thacker; and second, Cindy Parshall.

The deciding moment had finally come with Megan Anderson and Leila Campbell the only remaining girls. Time seemed to stand still as Principal Dr. Donald Torrey came forward to announce the year's homecoming queen and first princess. With opened envelope in hand he announced the first princess to be Leila, leaving Megan to reign as the 1979 Homecoming Queen.

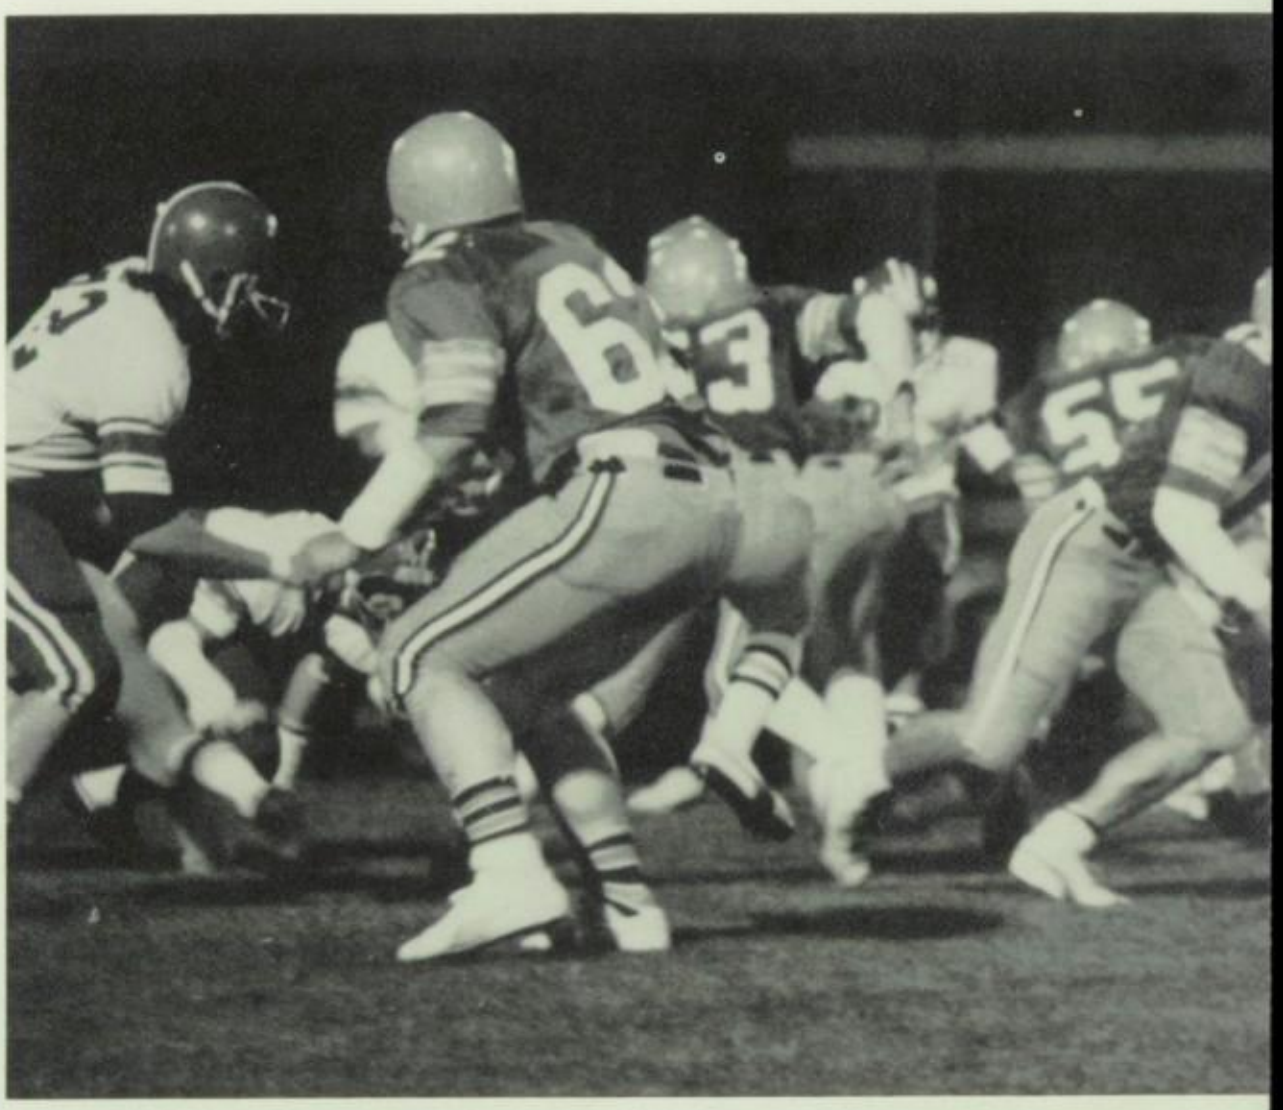
Homecoming Week Stirs Students



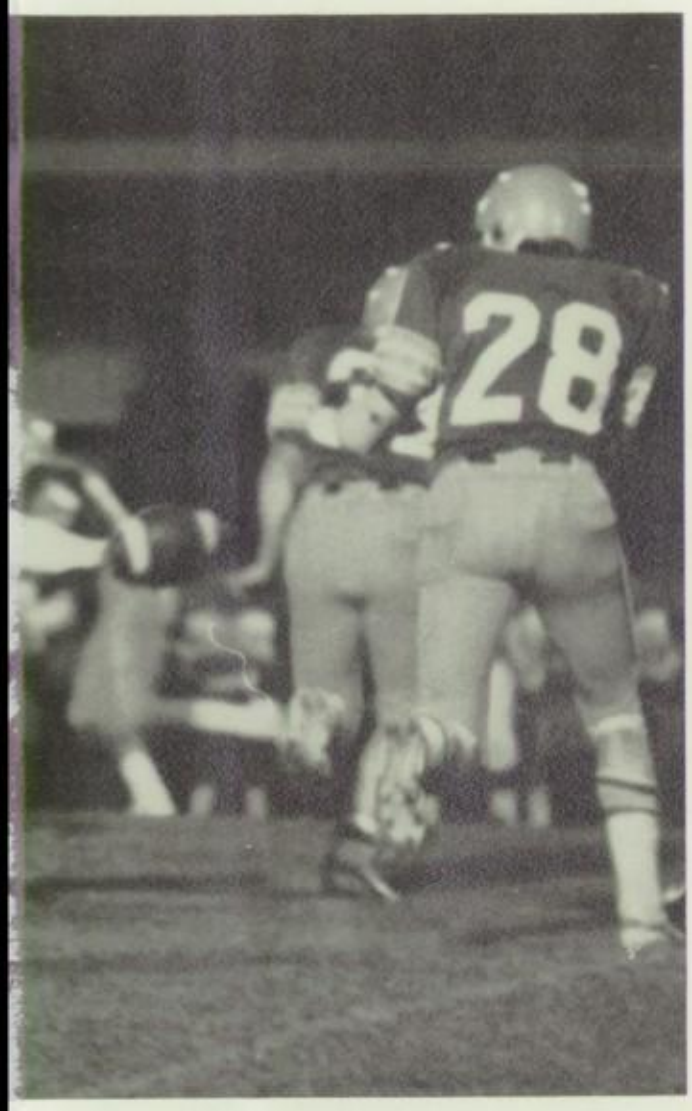
Homecoming Week held true to the Mariner tradition of being a week of fun and excitement. It consisted of the coronation, Pairs Day, Hillybilly Day, Spirit Day, pep assembly, football game, and dance.

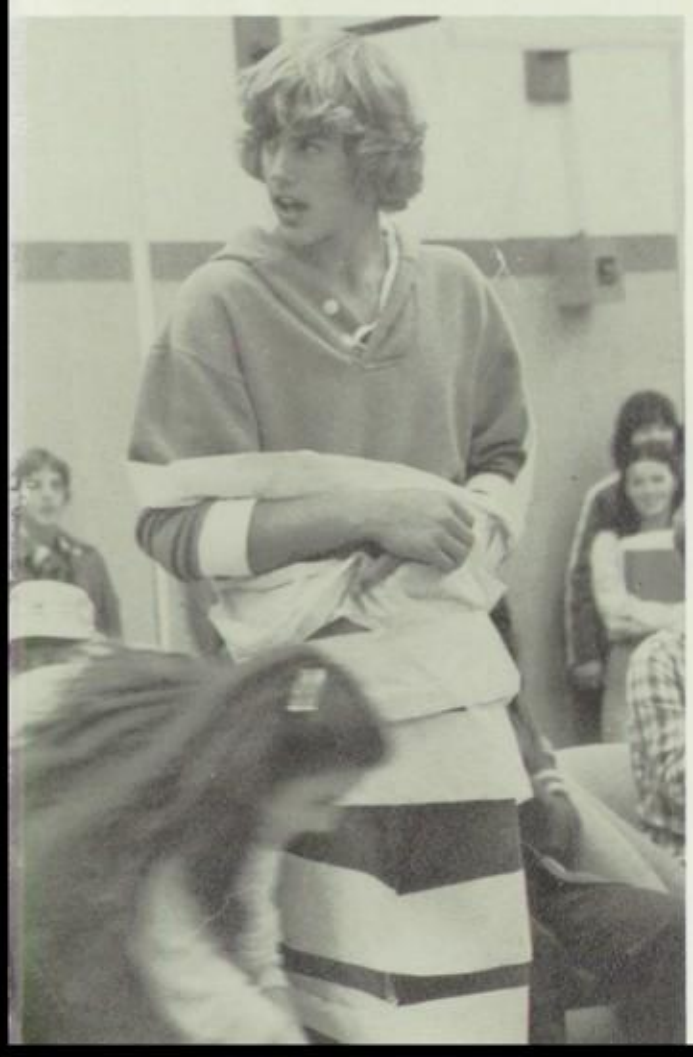
The week began effectively with the Coronation Assembly on Tuesday, September 25, which was also Dress Up Day. This set the pace and started the spirit that was to increase throughout the week.

Pairs Day followed on a lighter note, as people dressed up in an assortment of different ways. Identical twins, green monsters, lions, and Raggedy Ann and Andy were seen walking the halls of Mariner.

The costume changed to hillbilly attire Thursday, as Homecoming Week continued. It was overalls, rolled-up pants and plaid shirts galore, with hair done up in pigtails and faces splashed with freckles.

On Friday the whole week came together. Dressed in blue and gold and various hats, the student body gathered in the gym to blow the roof off! Queen Megan presided with her court, as all enjoyed class competitions and skits. The senior class won both the poster and spirit competitions. The spirit continued as the Marauder football team met the Mountlake Terrace Hawks, whaling on them 31-7. The day ended beautifully mid purple streamers and flowers at the Homecoming Dance, where couples danced to the music of Hard Times.





Gridders capture division crown

When a new person walks into your life and says, "I'm going to take you to the top," it's not likely that one will believe.

Such was the fact at Mariner High this year, as Coach Frank Goddard walked into the lives of many young men and promised to take them to the top.

The Marauders got off to a good start with a 13-10 victory over Everett. Coach Goddard felt that this was the most vital game. "We had to win to gain the necessary confidence needed to establish a winning attitude toward the rest of the season." The Marauders lost to the defending state champions, the Snohomish Panthers. "We really weren't prepared for Snohomish. They came out fired up due to a loss in the previous game," stated Smith.

Then the Marauders won their next seven games, including the division championship game against Cascade, 20-6. In its first play-off game, Mariner lost to a strong defensive team from Meadowdale, 22-6.

Underclassmen show great determination

Playing hard and fast brought this year's Freshman Football Team outstanding victories. This was shown by their 4-2 season. The team lived past the expectations of their coach, Mr. Morris. They beat Snohomish 12-6 breaking Snohomish's 62 game winning streak. The team lost against Shorewood 22-14, but continued with the knowledge and skill they had gained;

Some outstanding players were Jon Iseman, Mike Rucker, Karl Bourgette and Tom Corrigan, but it was the team work that brought them their success.

The Sophomore Football Team completed their season with a 4-4 record. Among these games was the 45-16 defeat over Woodway.

Some outstanding players were David Lamey, Scott Kummer and Tim Knauber. Without teamwork they would not have succeeded.

In all the Sophomore football team completed their goal of playing with consistency and will go on with effort and skill to apply in their future years at M.H.S.

Harriers have mixed season

Cross Country is a type of long distance racing. Unlike track and field, cross country competition is not held on a track. Runners must trudge across fields and muddy golf courses. Through woods and over steep hills they must have self discipline and push themselves past the point of pain.

Front row: B. Glasscock, J. Ducher, S. McBride, D. Warren, R. Page, L. Baker. Second row: R. Newton, D. Kestle, R. King, M. Burton, T. Merrimen, D. Lamey. Third row: S. Franckowiak, S. Dunlap, C. It takes a lot of stamina and endurance to do any sport but cross country takes a combination of both and much more.

At the District meet there was an excellent run by Eric Haycock who placed 8th. Pat Hebert hung in there and captured 18th place while Elaine stepped into 20th for the girls.

Even though a course may be stretched over a large area, Mr. Price's excitement can be heard throughout the pain and agony of his runners.

"Next year's team should be stronger if the outstanding young runners return," stated Mr. Price.

"I'm excited about the future of X-country at MHS."

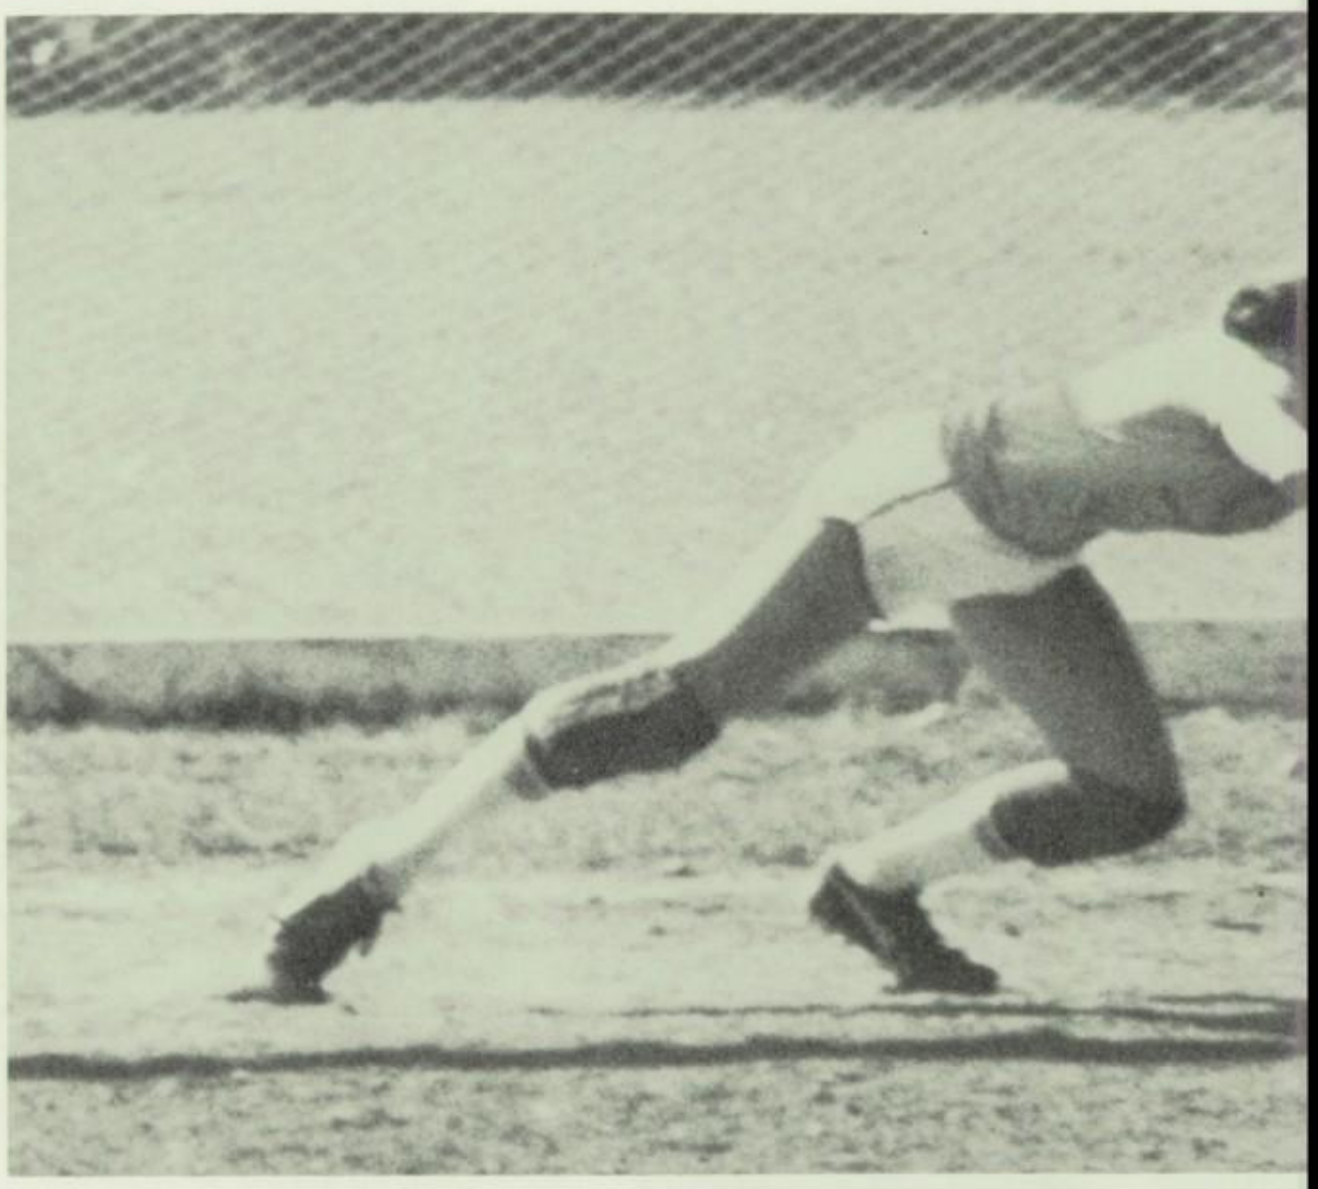
Girls reach their goals

The major goal of this year's Girls' Soccer Team was not only to have a winning season, but also to have a lot of fun. Enthusiasm was clearly visible in both the coaching staff and the team members. Psych parties became a major factor as the Marauders progressed to a winning season of 10-4.



Placing them in the Everett Invitational Tournament.

The team grew by learning to play together in a group and not as individuals. "We always had teamwork," said Joan Lamey, center fullback. "We wouldn't have had a successful season if it had not been for everyone's participation and interest in playing," she added.

"This was our first winning season," said Dana Ashford, team captain and sweeper fullback. "It feels good to win," she concluded.

Girls carry on winning title

"These were the easiest and nicest girls to coach," replied Coach Watson. "It was the strongest girls team so far," he added.

The girls concluded their season by becoming Wesco Champions for the fifth consecutive year and captured their third N.W. Regional Championship. Eight swimmers and divers qualified for state, among these were Kristy Soderman, Liz Anderson, Dana Wadekamper and Denise Strong who placed seventh in the 400 freestyle relay.

There was an extraordinary amount of leadership and togetherness shown by the team this year. For the first time in five years their title was threatened by a league team. The newly entered Shoreline and Shorewood proved to be their toughest competition of the season, and the girls united as they fought to defend their crown.

"This year was a building year for the future of Mariner's Girls' Tennis," stated Coach Peightel. "It was a successful season, not with a lot of victories, but with the skills acquired and the lessons learned for the future."

The girls ended their season with a 4-11 record.

The team consisted of many excellent players. Team captain, Jill Reid, was the number one singles player and set standards for hustle and determination. Second in singles was freshman Liz Hawley, who showed great potential for next year. Trina Hale and Tracy Burgess were outstanding in doubles competition. The best win-lost record went to Kim Corrigan and partners, with their first-rate doubles performances.

Spikers miss state by one

Placing fourth in districts is really good. And being one point away from going to state is even better. The girl's volleyball team achieved both this year, despite a few handicaps.

The number of returning lettermen this year was very small, but with Cynthia Pancerzewski and Missy Thompson leading, they still came out on top.

A very young team was also a disadvantage. Junior Varsity was comprised of mainly sophomores and freshmen, who while they were sometimes lacking in skill, were there in quantity and spirit. JV also had a new coach, who worked with them everyday after school, preparing them for the games.

Ms. Thorstenson, the varsity coach, was enthused by the girls' excellent playing. The entire team remained rallied and excited throughout the season, spurring them on to victory.

ASB assembly starts year

It was getting up early, coming back to school and seeing old friends as Mariner's annual A.S.B. assembly was getting the year off to a fantastic start. The bleachers were packed as all eyes were on Dave Beninger, the A.S.B. president, as he explained things and welcomed everyone back.

The many new faces in the crowd were not only in the bleachers as the student body met the new vice-principal, Mr. Ron Robinson, other new officers, teachers and student teachers. Principal Dr. Don Torrey rounded the meeting off with his feelings on the coming year, and the students were then dismissed to begin their new year.

Assembly lifts spirit

Mariner students, their rowdiness not affected by the crowding in the stands, brought the house down at the year's first pep assembly. Spirits were high as the cheerleaders led the students through cheers, skits, competition and the introduction of the new football coach, Mr. Frank Goddard.

The assembly ended with the annual freshman initiation. This year's victim was Brian Young who was blindfolded and made to guess which cheerleader kissed him, but it was actually his mother. Bret Coonrod, A.S.B. vice-president, then asked Brian who kissed him. Brian's answer? "It's my Mom!" (upper right)

New teachers join Marauders

Not only were there new students this year, but many new teachers joined the ranks of Mariner. They came from all over, filling a wide range of positions.

These people added much to the Mariner system.

Mariner gets new SAIL

Mariner was privileged to have some very special students there this year who were part of the new S.A.I.L. program. This class moved over from Fairmount Elementary School where it was held the previous year.

S.A.I.L., standing for Specialized Activities for Independent Living, was headed by Mr. John McGuirk and was a program for handicapped students up to 21 years of age. Topics and activities taught included money and time management, family living skills, direction following and responsible work habits.

The S.A.I.L. program offered much to its students. It helped them learn new things and participate in everyday activities through care, learning and fun. (lower right)

Save energy? Achoo!

As the temperature went down outside with fall coming on, so did the temperature inside of Mariner. To save energy, Dr. Don Torrey announced that the thermostats would be lowered to a cool 65°. This was done in accordance with President Jimmy Carter's national energy plan.

This change in temperature, though small, was noticed by students and teachers alike. Many began to wear warmer clothing to class, including coats, sweatshirts, jackets and anything else they could get their hands on! (upper left)

Policy lowers tardies

Along with the new students, teachers, officers and temperature, a new tardy policy was put into use. This policy was introduced by Mr. Ron Robinson, as an answer to the tardy problem.

Under this new program, students were allowed three unexcused tardies a semester from all seven classes. Upon receiving a fourth tardy they were then required to spend half an hour after school cleaning up the halls or any other assigned task. Any tardies after this resulted in an hour of after-school help.

The thought of spending a half hour after school was enough to cause students to think about not being tardy.

F.F.A. wins honors

F.F.A. was off and running in its activities and accomplishments this year. Its members participated and achieved in various competitions held throughout the fall months.

Some of these activities and honors included first place in the Landscaping Design competition at the Evergreen State Fair, first place in District One Parliamentary Procedure competition, and first place in two horticulture contests that were held in Vancouver, Washington, and Portland, Oregon, in which fifteen other schools participated in. The Equestrian chapter of F.F.A. also won honors, placing first in the State Horse Jamboree Contest at the Evergreen State Fair.

This group, headed by Lloyd Glasscock, president, and Ed Amato, vice-president, and advised by Mr. Knue, showed excellence in their work. Their efforts have brought state recognition to the Future Farmers of America club at Mariner.

Career show returns

The Career Assembly put on by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company and radio station KJR again visited Mariner. The assembly was aimed at careers, showing the different steps in selecting the right one.

The presentation itself was mainly made up of a film shown on double screens. Afterwards the students were able to listen to a disc jockey from KJR answer questions, asked by students before the show, about him and his radio career.

Aimed at the students and their career choices, the assembly gave insight into career decisions and selection. This would be an important aid to students in that most would face this decision in the next few years.

Students help others

Mariner again participated in the annual Turkey Trot to raise money to fight multiple schlerosis. Mariner placed first among other local schools in total money gained.

The drive was headed by Mr. Jerry Carr and many students participated in the run. These runners gave unselfishly of their time and energy to help those not as fortunate as themselves.

Reservations for thirty?

A new system was started this year regarding attendance at assemblies. This program gave students more room in the assemblies and an option to going or not.

What the new set-up involved was reservations. The class that would be going due to the time the assembly was scheduled would vote on whether they would go or not. If the vote was negative no one would go and if it was positive the whole class would go. This gave those that went more space in the meeting area due to the lack of some classes.

Also under the new program, assemblies were sometimes presented in split performances. For example, first floor classes a certain period would go to one showing and the second floor classes would go to another. This also added more room at the assemblies, which added to the enjoyment of them. These two different options, reservations and dual showings, could be used separately or in combination with each other.

After the crowded conditions at the year's first assembly, the new system provided relief and room for the students. These reservations and dual showings weren't used at pep assemblies, though, where everyone attended, like one BIG, happy family.

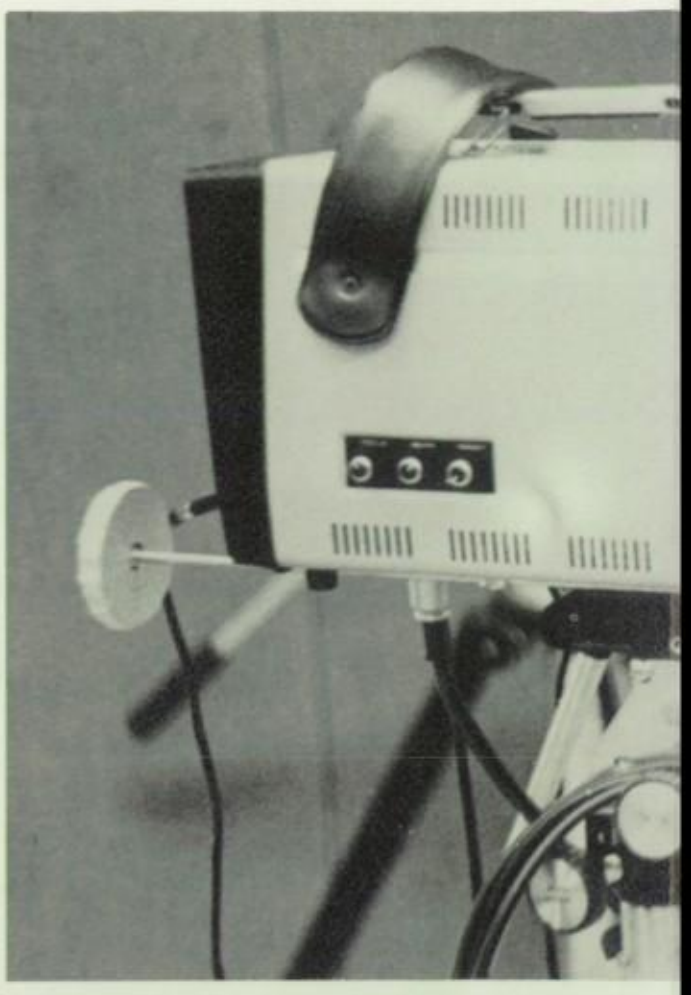
Salad joins menu

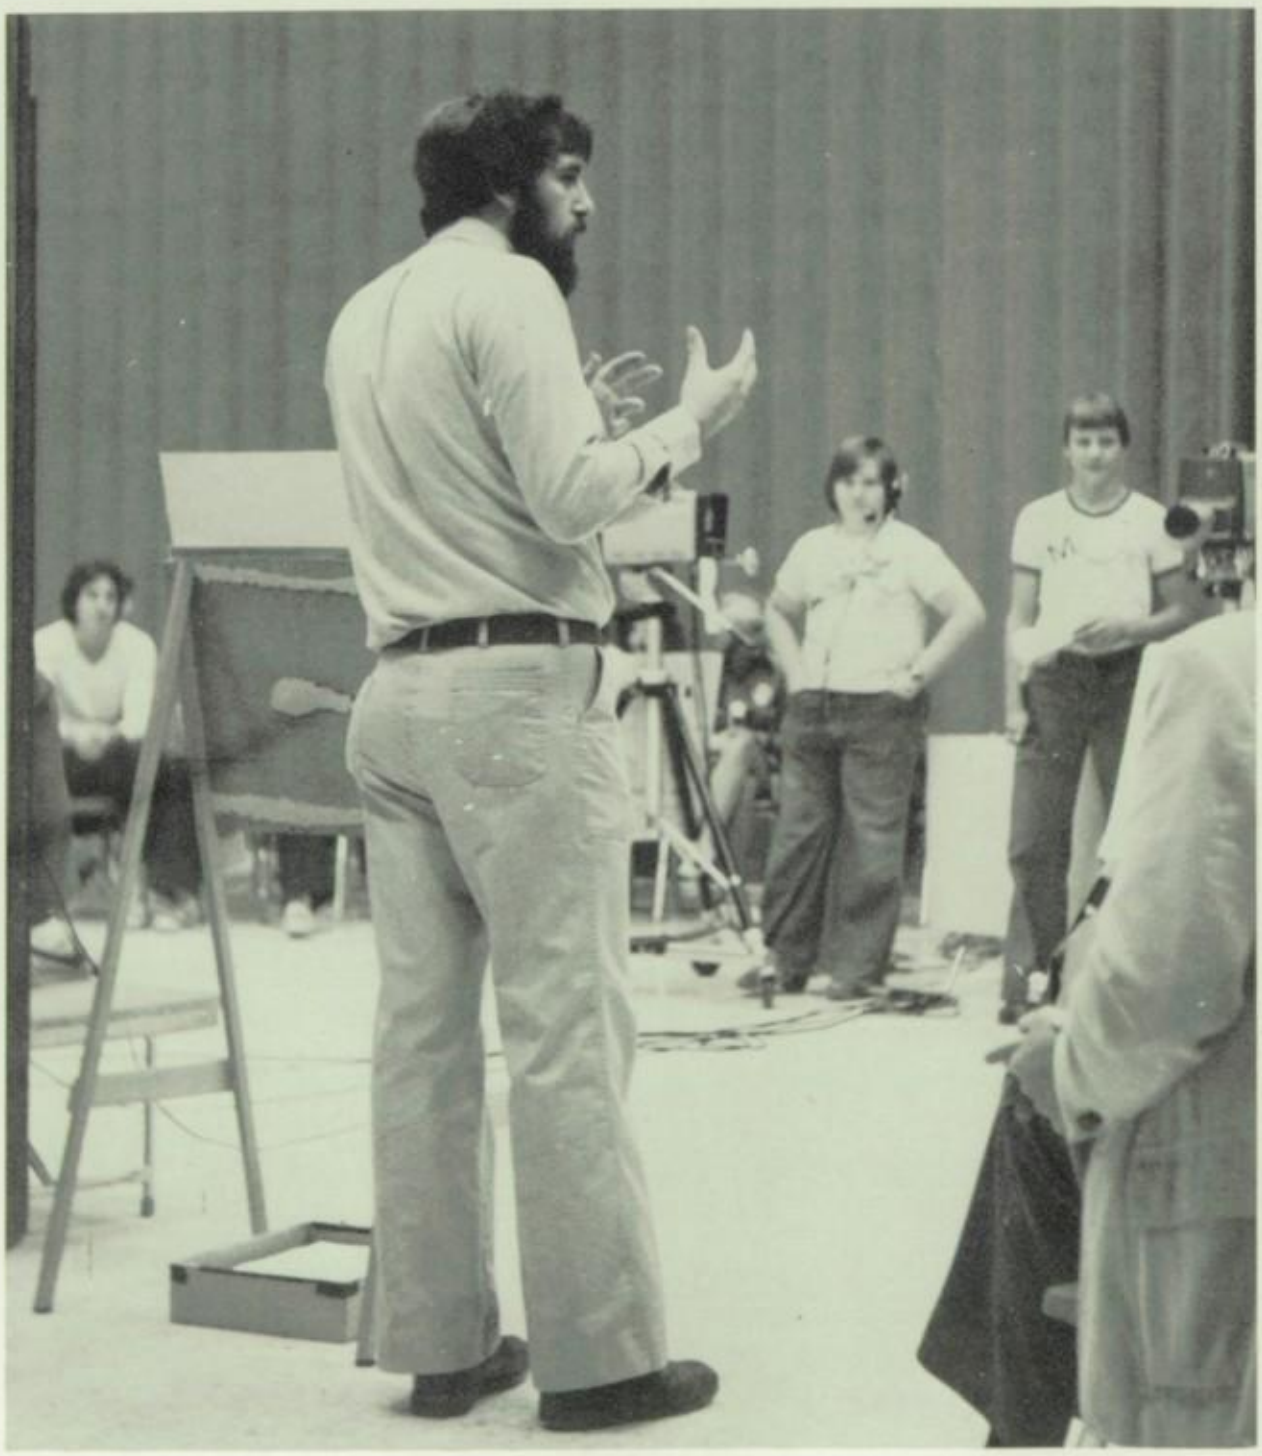
The greens had it when the new salad bar opened during both lunches this year. Taste buds were satisfied as plates were heaped with salad, fruit, vegetables and a roll.

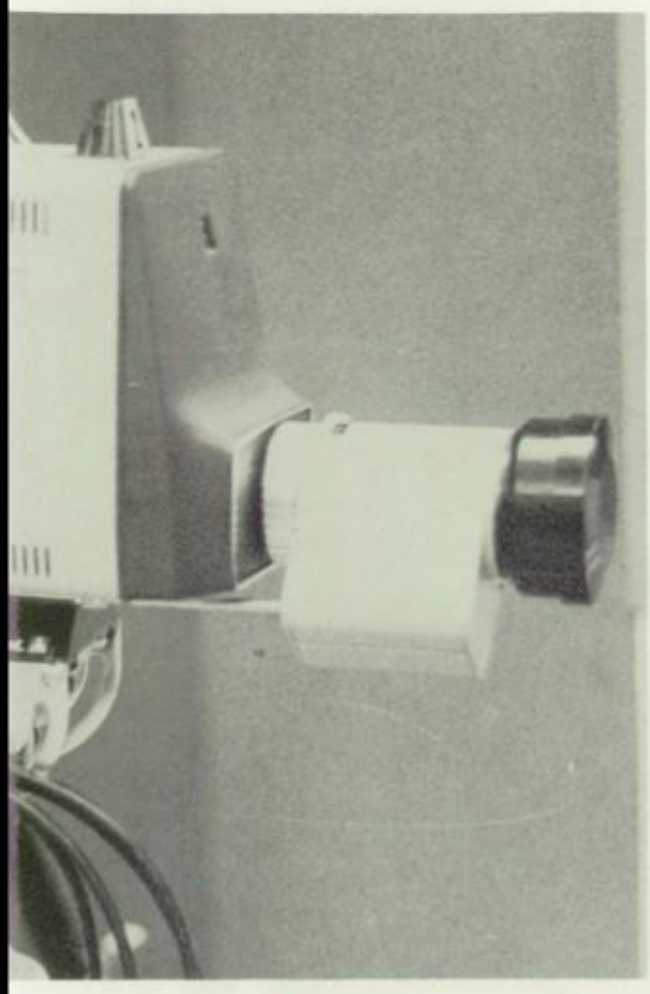
The salads did not take the place of the regular hot lunches but were offered in addition to them. For eighty cents students were able to fill their plates with however much they wanted.

This new food feature was added after the central kitchen manager, Mrs. June Hudlow, visited other schools with salad stands and saw the good response they received there. Students here liked it because the salads filled them up but didn't add very many calories.

Mariner's hot lunches had a reputation of being too dry or too soggy. This year these lunches had some competition, the students themselves deciding the better of the two.







New dance at Mariner

The "Goblin Getdown" had its debut as Mariner's first Halloween dance, held October 26th. The band was Planet and the dance occurred after the Friday night football game.

Most people came stag and many dressed up in a variety of costumes, the most numerous being "togas". The dance was sponsored by the sophomore class and was put on as a fund raiser.

Those who went enjoyed themselves dancing with or in various get-ups. The dance added to the fun spirit of the season and may become a Mariner tradition.

G.A.A. party a success

The G.A.A. Halloween Party brought together girls in all sorts of costumes for a night of fun and games. This event is an annual occurrence, put on amidst the other fall G.A.A. activities.

The night consisted of apple bobbing, ping pong blowing, bat relays, skits and food! Also there was a costume contest, awarding the standouts.

The party was felt to be a success with 67 girls coming out to participate in the Halloween excitement. Junior Becky Thomas described it as being, "Really, really fun."

Assembly honors America

"An Age of Challenge and Change" was the theme for the Americanism Assembly this year. Put on mainly by the new Political Science class, the program revolved around this title.

Topics touched on by the speakers included national problems, hope for the youth as the future leaders, energy, and challenges to be faced. Music provided by concert band and concert choir, Kris Zimmerman and Stephanie Smith added to the assembly. A.S.B. president, Dave Beninger, presented wreathes to representatives from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. Also included in the program was special emphasis put on the voting of eligible seniors in the upcoming elections.

The Americanism Assembly provided a time for students to reflect on the country and its present and future conditions. It also showed that this time is filled with change and challenges.

Lights! Cameras! Action!

The Mariner television crew really hit T.V. as Viacom Cablevision began to televise their weekly show on Thursday nights. This along with new equipment and class effort got "Starboard Tack" rolling this year.

Mr. Joe Fulcher, the production class advisor, took a demo tape of the program to Viacom who agreed to run the tapes every week with no charge. The show was still filmed and shown at Mariner, but the new set up allowed outsiders who were interested in the school to see what was going on.

The program underwent a few changes and made a few additions. Instead of continually trying new ideas and features, the class decided to work only with certain things and improve on those. A special effects generator and two new cameras were added to the equipment and helped the crew put on a more professional show. Along with its new name, "Starboard Tack", the program also had live musical entertainment and, for a while, had a "Disco Destruction" segment where disco records were broken.

The television class, like other media classes at Mariner, was run by the students with the advisor's help and Mr. Fulcher felt that those in the class were really excited about television production. Summing up the class itself, he said, "You have a lot of different people doing a lot of different things and everyone's got to work together on a split-second basis."

Overturned tank threatens Everett

While students sat at school doing their work on September 25, a possible crisis was developing in downtown Everett. A liquid propane railroad tank overturned causing a potentially explosive situation.

Railroad workers and Everett firemen were on hand trying carefully to right the overturned tank. They labored at this for sixteen hours while nearby homes and businesses were evacuated in case of a blow-up.

Fortunately, the tank was righted with no mishaps thanks to the hard but cautious work of those laboring on it. Everett residents were able to return to their homes, finding them unharmed.

Our hearts were young

A nostalgic comedy, "Our Hearts were Young and Gay," was presented by Mariner's Drama Department this fall. The play revolved around two young girls, Cornelia Skinner, played by Kris Zimmerman, and Emily Kimbrough, played by Michelle Ross. It told of their various misadventures on and off an ocean voyage bound for France.

They were accompanied by Cornelia's parents, Otis Skinner and Maud Skinner, played by Mike Pearce and Debbie Hagman.

Along their way, Emily and Cornelia met and fell in love with two medical students, Leo and Dick, played by Wayne Heller and Don Goins.

Once in France, the girls end up taking acting lessons, getting bedbugs, being blown up, and also having a reunion with Dick and Leo before their journey home.

The play was adapted from Emily Kimbrough's autobiography. On the last performance the cast and crew gave a bouquet of roses to the Director, Mrs. Jan Piercy, for her support and guidance.

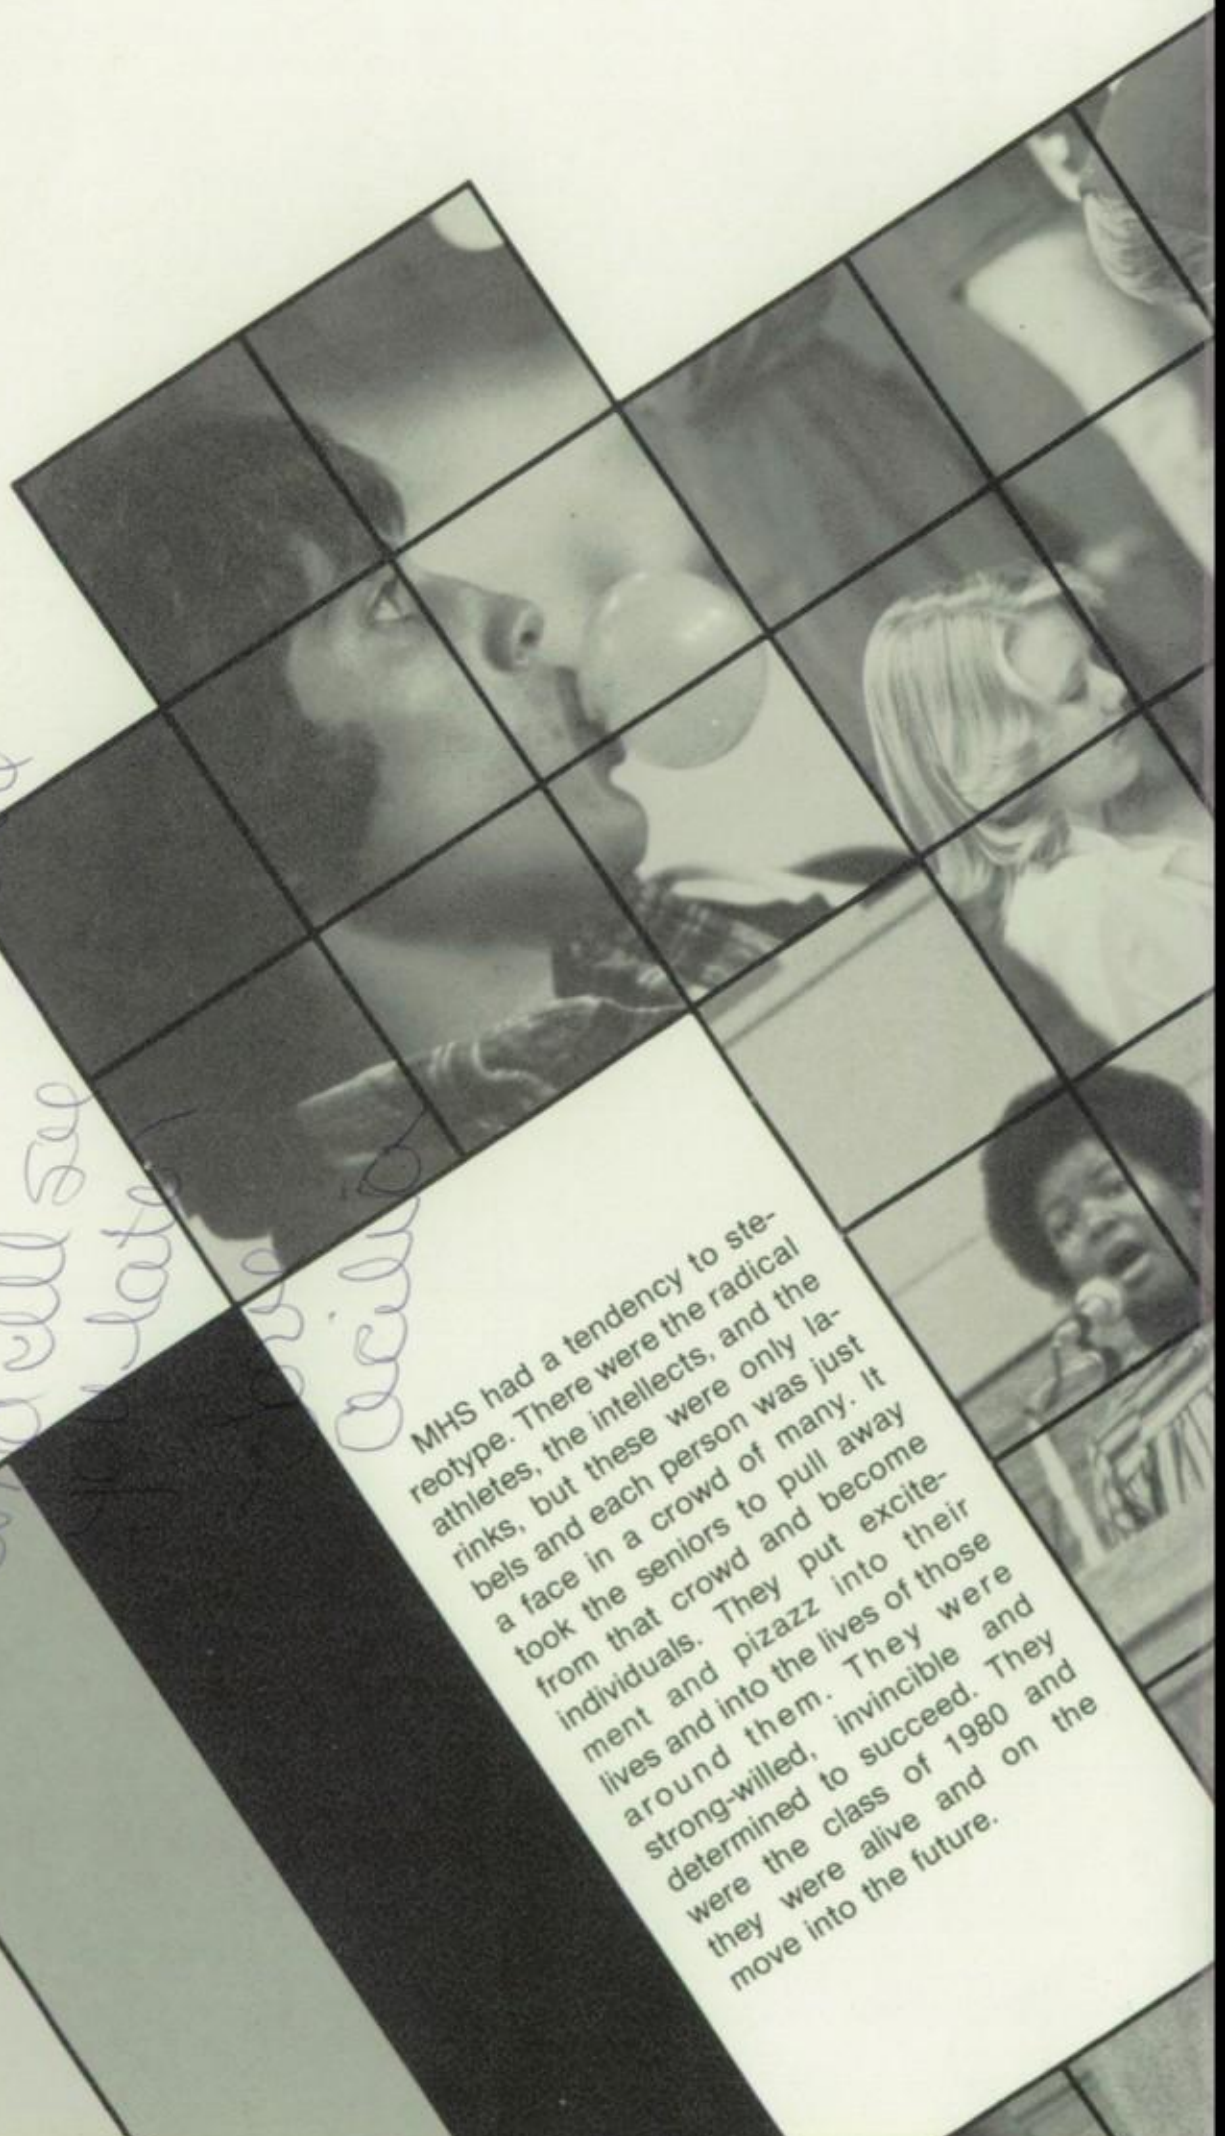
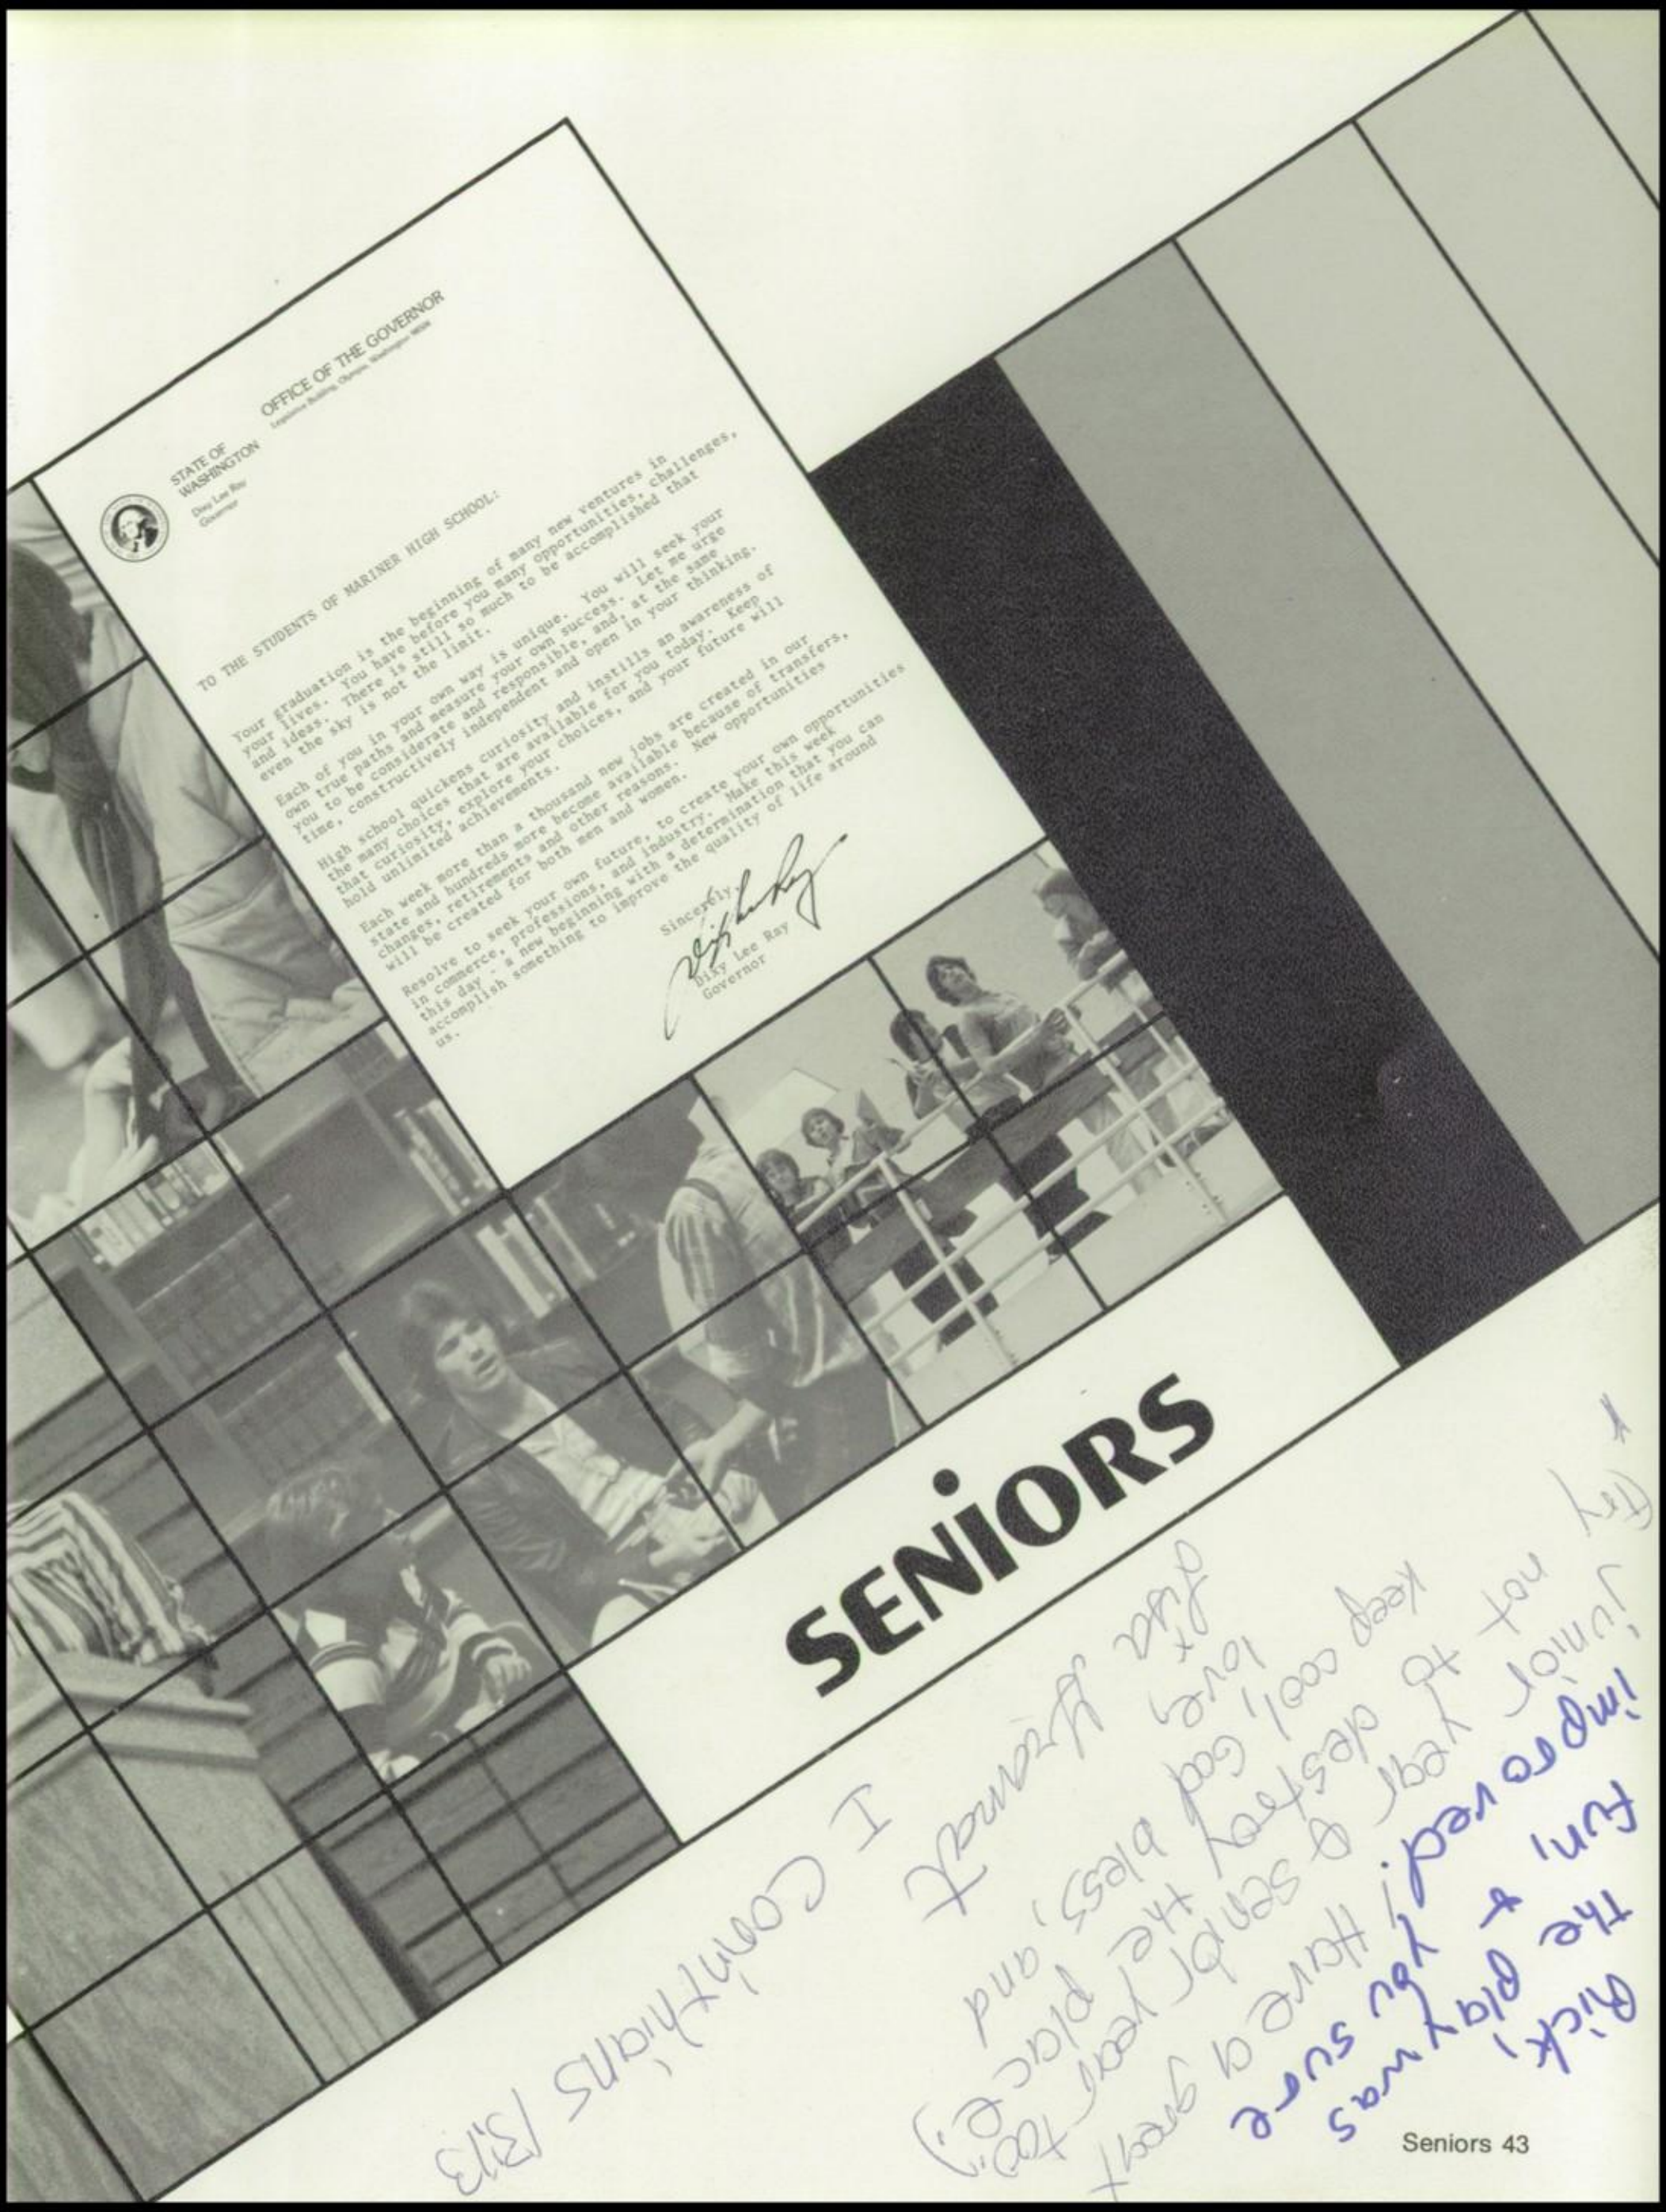
Eph. 3:17-19 Carol Burns
"80"

Rick, I hope that your 11th year of school was just as much fun as mine was. I wish you lots of luck for the future and your last school year. Take care and I'll see you later.
Cecil



MHS had a tendency to stereotype. There were the radical athletes, the intellects, and the rinks, but these were only labels and each person was just a face in a crowd of many. It took the seniors to pull away from that crowd and become individuals. They put excitement and pizazz into their lives and into the lives of those around them. They were strong-willed, invincible and determined to succeed. They were the class of 1980 and they were alive and on the move into the future.



STATE OF WASHINGTON
Dixy Lee Ray
Governor
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
Legislative Building, Olympia, Washington 98504
TO THE STUDENTS OF MARINER HIGH SCHOOL:
Your graduation is the beginning of many new ventures in your lives. You have before you many opportunities, challenges, and ideas. There is still so much to be accomplished that even the sky is not the limit.
Each of you in your own way is unique. You will seek your own true paths and measure your own success. Let me urge you to be considerate and responsible, and, at the same time, constructively independent and open in your thinking.
High school quickens curiosity and instills an awareness of the many choices that are available for you today. Keep that curiosity, explore your choices, and your future will hold unlimited achievements.
Each week more than a thousand new jobs are created in our state and hundreds more become available because of transfers, changes, retirements and other reasons. New opportunities will be created for both men and women.
Resolve to seek your own future, to create your own opportunities in commerce, professions, and industry. Make this week this day - a new beginning with a determination that you can accomplish something to improve the quality of life around us.
Sincerely,
Dixy Lee Ray
Governor

The senior class of 1980 was one of the more humorous classes to ever pass through MHS. They were fun loving, energetic, and always had something crazy going.

A quick start at designing and selling senior t-shirts helped boost the class' morale early in the year.

Their enthusiasm carried on through the fall as T.P.'ing became a weekly activity. Many seniors spent Saturday and Sunday cleaning up massive amounts of toilet paper, and often in the pouring down rain.

The seniors dominated for the remainder of the year as they led the other classes in schoolwide activities. Homecoming Week, the turkey trot, Christmas at Mariner, Valentine's Week and numerous other events became an exciting part of campus life with the organization and leadership of seniors.

A trail of laughter and smiling faces was left behind by the class of 1980. They were definitely alive and on the move to create an exciting new decade.

GERALD R. FORD

Dear Students;

Is your future ALIVE AND ON THE MOVE?

The seeds of your future achievements lie in today's dreams. As you believe in yourself and in the value of your dreams, so will those seeds sprout and grow. As you can form a working partnership with the Lord of Creation and keep your eye on your goal with that serene confidence that sees in each failure a pathway to new successes, so will you achieve.

Is America ALIVE AND ON THE MOVE to allow you that opportunity?

The greatness of America is nothing more or less than the combined greatness of individual Americans. As our generation releases the reins of leadership, we look to your generation to move America's greatness to new heights.

Let your motto be: Perceive...Believe...Achieve... and you will see an America truly ALIVE AND ON THE MOVE!

Warmest best wishes,

Gerald R. Ford

The opportunity for learning is a rare gift. But at Mariner, the way it's done is what makes learning come alive for the students. For the teachers; the interest and initiative taken is enough to bolster their professions indefinitely.

People need people; the teachers and the students need each other.

Yes it's people that make life extraordinary. If their ideas are explosive, if they're imaginative, enthused and just excited about life, then you also will become electrified. Excitement is contagious, and it's excitement that puts us on the move!

Juniors

Striving to work together and to keep excitement strong, was the main objective of the Class of '81. Their $900 profit made from the Homecoming Dance helped them to uphold the largest class treasury. Walking the hallways, wearing sunglasses and with peculiar hats atop their heads, helped to keep spirit within the class. Their password for the canned food drive was "Wally" and it helped them to obtain a 2nd place finish. The continual closeness of the juniors was maintained throughout the year with their rowdiness and involvement at pep assemblies and other school-wide activities.

Sophomores

The creativity and involvement of the Class of '82 was helpful in keeping a close unity. As the first class ever to succeed in holding a Halloween Dance, the sophomores worked hard to establish this new tradition. They were constantly putting new ideas into use in their participation at the ASB meetings. S.A.G.A. (Sophomores Are Great Achievers) motivated them as they collected over $100 in donations for our annual Christmas at Mariner program. The uniqueness of the sophomores has grown in their years here at Mariner. They are continually striving for excellence.

Freshmen

With eyes filled with expectations and questions running through their heads, the newest additions to Mariner arrived, the Class of '83. The football season was exciting for the youngest members of our family. Alfy's soon became invaded on Friday nights by eager freshmen hoping to get in the swing of things. Christmas at Mariner is a giving time and the freshmen proved this as they won first place for the canned food drive, possibly due to the threat of Mr. Price, clothed as a woman. Their enthusiasm of "finally" being here was carried out within the entire class, and they soon became a very important and close part of Mariner.

1st term officers: President, Joby Gildersleeve; Vice President, Jill Romo; Secretary, Michelle McBee; Treasurer, Tawnya Unger.

Class Advisor: Mr. Price

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

June 26, 1979

Annual Staff
Mariner High School
200-120th S.W.
Everett, Washington 98204

Dear 1980 Graduates:

It is a privilege and a pleasure to extend my greetings and congratulations to you. You have completed a challenging high school curriculum, and now, as you leave Mariner, you will go your own ways to make contributions to your community and to our nation.

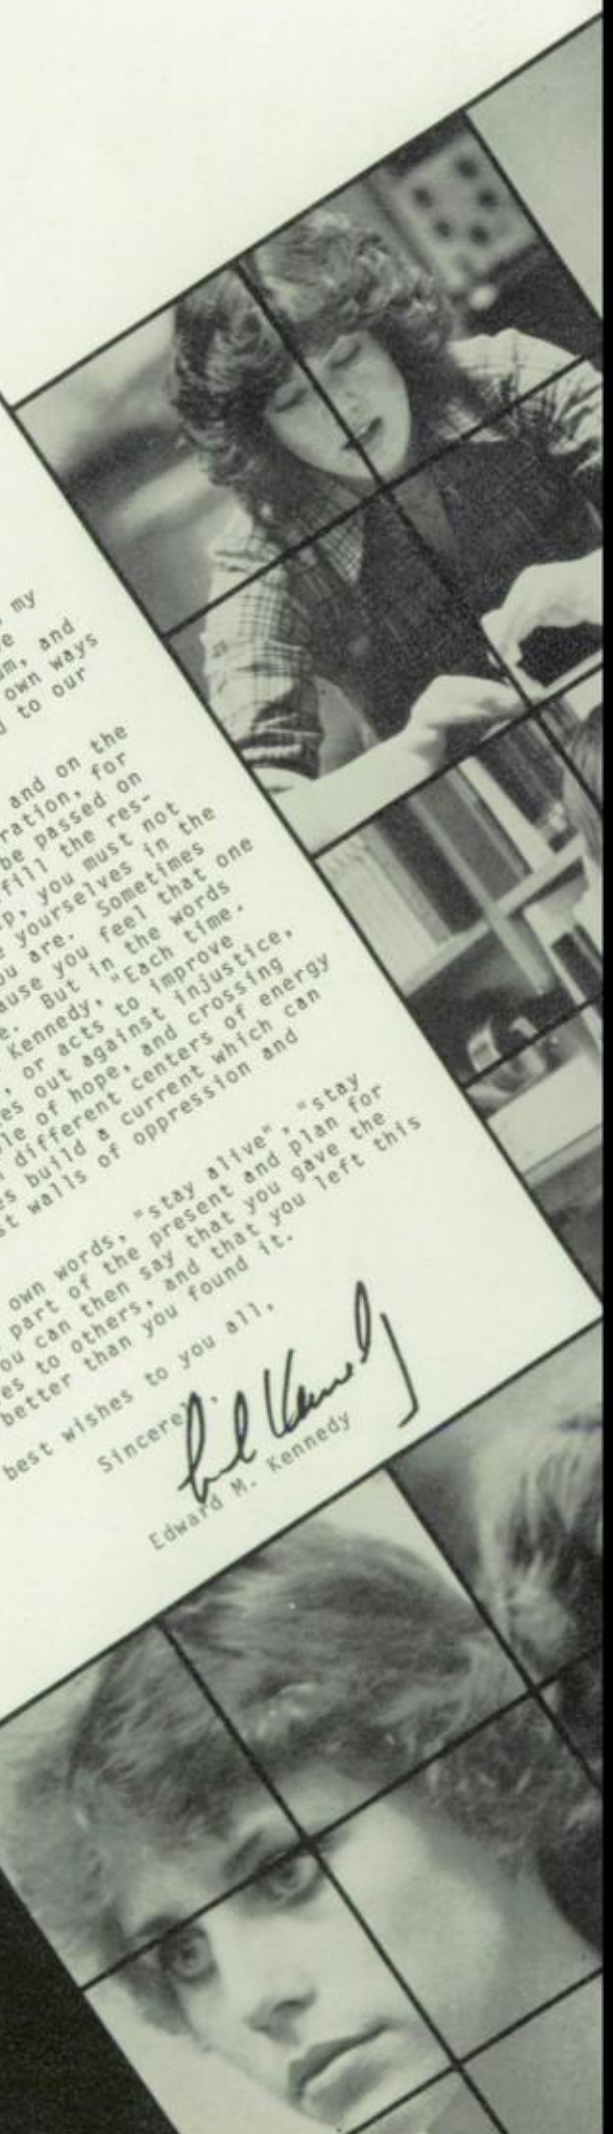
The theme of your yearbook, "Alive and on the Move" is both a challenge and an inspiration, for the standard of leadership will soon be passed on to your generation. In order to fulfill the responsibilities of creative citizenship, you must not remain on the sidelines, but place yourselves in the center of the action, wherever you are. Sometimes it is easier to stand aside because you feel that one person cannot make a difference. But in the words of my brother, Senator Robert Kennedy, "Each time a man stands up for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends forth a tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and caring, those ripples build a current which can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance".

And so, in your own words, "stay alive", "stay on the move", be a part of the present and plan for the future, and you can then say that you gave the best of yourselves to others, and that you left this world a little better than you found it.

With my best wishes to you all.

Sincerely,

Edward M. Kennedy



WINTER

Winter brought about many changes. The spectators had moved inside to the basketball court, to a more temperate atmosphere. The enthusiasm and winning of the previous fall had rubbed off onto our winter athletes. The Marauders were now near the top of the league standings in every sport.

The thrill of Christmas came and went as did the last minute cramming during the final week of the semester.

The most excitement of the season came with the falling of the biggest snow in years. An entire week of delayed classes and even none at all gave kids a chance to hit the hills. They took the sleds out of hiding, grabbed inner tubes, cardboard boxes, or whatever they could find to slide on.

It was a season for laughter and fun. The unusual weather conditions got us enthused and it put variety into our day to day routines.

Whatever your personal activities were at the time we all shared one thing . . . the coming of a new decade. Would it be a better one? The 70's had been filled with excitement and change. It had definitely been a decade of people alive and on the move. But now it's the 80's and it's up to us to make things happen.

Richard I hope this year has been a good one for you. I hope you have a good summer and I'll see you next year - Marley sometime I'll play D&D with your group

You've got a great personality Kristy ↓ P.S. you got some class you're a learner player

Defense leads cagers to second in division

The Marauder roundballers took second place in their division with lots of hard work. "Though we had inexperience at most positions, players like Jeff Holgerts and Mike Altman showed a lot of improvement during the season," commented Coach Jerry Carr.

Tough, hardwork defense kept the M's in the middle of every game they played. "We were never once blown out," commented Carr. Quickness at guard and good team communication aided the defense.

Coach Carr cited the second game against Cascade as a particularly crucial game. "We could have gone anywhere depending on that game— to the top or as low as fifth or sixth. We played well and won by 13 on their court."

Bob Slosson was a bright spot. "Bob consistently played outstanding basketball as we got into the season," said Mr. Carr.

JV's have ups and downs

With four games left the boys JV basketball team had a record of six wins and ten losses. It was a year of ups and downs, a year which fell into phases.

In the first half of the year their record was five and five with two of the losses in overtime—not the greatest, but respectable. Then they went into a slump losing five games in a row. But Coach Mead felt the team would do well down the final stretch.

About the team, Coach Mead said, "We're a good pressing team; we make up in hustle what we don't have in height."

With one game left, the sophomores were four wins and seven losses. But, one coach said, "Nobody expects the sophomores to win—it's a building year. It's a year when the best players go to JV or beyond." This year five sophomores played JV ball.

The freshmen gave up three of their players to the soph team, and finished 1-13. Coach Morris said, "I wasn't satisfied with the record, but I was with the fact that all 18 players played in every game and that is what underclass basketball is all about—experience."

Girls basketball does it again

Varsity girls' basketball came through with another highly successful season. Once again they showed that they were a power to be reckoned with. Seniors Renee' Thacker, Lisa Hawes, and the incomparable Cindy Pancerzewski helped guide the team through a practically flawless season. Team coach, Mr. Costello said, "We are definitely one of the best teams in Wesco, and with players like Pam Hoelzle and Michelle Gardner returning next year, this formidable force can only hope to go higher."

Junior Varsity, although not having as prosperous a season as was hoped for, did show an extreme amount of skill and effort. This was a highly successful building-season, with the whole team finishing with the invaluable experience that will be a great asset in future years.

As for the newly founded Freshmen team, they debuted with an outstanding first season.

Gymnasts achieve their goals

The challenge of hard to reach goals sparked the girls gymnastics team to produce higher scores and better routines as the season progressed. A strong underclass and overall improvement pushed the girls' scores up to record highs.

The team was led by junior Terri Knauber while she broke many school records including her own. Teresa Brandvold and Lynn Banky, both varsity veterans, helped fulfill team goals. Two newcomers on the scene, freshmen Melanie Hoelzle and Margaret McMahon, were also instrumental during this season.

Coach Ellis' philosophy for the season was that overall improvement, participation and also setting and meeting goals would help the team to be more successful at their meets. This philosophy was carried through by the team even though Melinda Furrer, a key varsity member, was put on the sidelines with a serious knee injury.

"Despite the departure of three seniors (Carla Larsen, Molly Mealoy, and Julie Romo) next year's team will be as good as or better then this year's team", Coach Erv Ellis added, "this is due to the fact that there are some hopeful prospects that shall soon be arriving here at Mariner".

Wet -n- Wild Winners!

What do swimmers go through to get so many victories and bring Mariners spirit to state? It all starts at 5:30 A.M. the buzzing alarm goes off and they drag themselves out of bed like zombies to head for turn-out. By the time the swimmers arrive to the smell of chlorine and the sharp screach of Mr. Watson's whistle their senses are told it's time to jump into the cold pool.

Training day in and day out in such a secluded place makes them want to get wild and rowdie for the after school meets and turn-out.

Due to the snow in January the swim team had numerous meets cancelled. Their schedule got back to normal so they could capture their fifth consecutive Wesco Championship. This year they had a 15-1 with the only loss against Wilson (the defending State Champs-21 years in a row). They also ran away with the N.W. Region 1 title.

Captains, Jeff Wilmot and Terry Lathen led the team to the State meet held at the University of Washington.

Coach Burns led the 1980 Mariner Wrestling team to another championship season. The wrestlers worked together to achieve a 13-0 record, a total of 79 dual matches in a row in a total of 5 years. The pride can be felt not only by the wrestlers but by the student and parent spectators. Many times Mr. Burns would say, "I'd rather lose with a bunch of winners than win with a bunch of losers." This statement thus exemplifies the closeness felt by the wrestlers.

Some wrestlers who stood out were Denise Winsor, Chuck Storfa, Kevin Fuller, and Brian Yates. These wrestlers plus many more helped to contribute to the district championship.

Mariner's wrestling program consists of three teams—sophomore, JV, and varsity. The sophomore team was made up of 15 boys who worked together to complete their season with an 11-0 record.

Some outstanding wrestlers that boosted the spirit amongst the other wrestlers were freshman Dan Martin and junior Andy Stave.

The JV team had a dazzling season with an undefeated record of 14 wins and no losses. Mr. Herbert stated, "The boys on JV were there to help the varsity. The future of Mariner wrestling can only get better." The teams' main goals this year were to develop good wrestlers for future varsity and to provide good physical training for JV wrestlers.

Not one wrestler could be picked by Mr. Herbert as outstanding—"they all were."

Cheerleaders provide smiles, pep and pride

Cheerleaders are the back bone of school pride. They are involved in many school activities. Although they don't have much time for other things, like sports. They support the school much more in spirit.

The football cheerleading team had a lot of exciting games to pep up this year since they cheered all the way to the Wesco Championships. Cindy Parshall comments that when the football team wins, we win as cheerleaders!

During the pep assemblies dance routines and skits were performed by the cheerleaders.

Football car caravans were boosted by the cheerleaders. Many people showed up for these spirit crazed parades, all rolling with excitement and pride to win the games.

Basketball cheerleaders were getting scarce by the end of the season due to sickness. But some how they managed to get things together and support a well organized and exciting Valentines Day Dance with the band "Hard Times."

Holidays light up Mariner

The holiday season rushed in and Mariner began to look like Santa's workshop as students began to ready the school for the upcoming activities. These activities included the decoration competition, the canned food drive, the Christmas assemblies, and the visit of the first grade children.

The activities began with each class decorating a designated area of the school. Elves, animals, carolers and Ziggys began to appear all over on windows and walls. A giant tree was raised and decorated in the concourse, and though this is an annual occurrence, this tree must have been the first in the school's history that was decorated with toilet paper! Also decorating the concourse were the seniors' stockings, decorated individually by each, and a big cheery Santa with his reindeer painted on the long concourse wall. The seniors took first place in the decoration competition with the other classes all tying for second.

The competition continued as each class worked to collect the most cans of food, ultimately to be given to needy families. The freshmen class won this competition, prompted on by their advisor's, Mr. Howard Price, promise to wear a dress if they won, which he did! The total cans brought in topped 4,000 and were given to the Volunteers of America in the A.S.B. Christmas assembly.

The last day of school before vacation began with this special assembly. Entertainment was provided by Reflections, band, Mary Joe Burgess and Wenda Dollarhide, each with musical numbers, the boys' basketball team with a skit, and the acting class. The highlight of the assembly was acting class's take off of "Saturday Night Live", calling it "Christmas Update." The audience laughed at the antics of the coneheads, newscasters, and the various commercials, recognizing the features from the weekly show.

While this assembly finished, the main event that Christmas at Mariner is famous for began. Little first grade children from Fairmont Elementary arrived in buses, ready for their visit of the high school.

Uncertain but excited expressions marked the faces of the little visitors as they were taken around the school by student chaperones to see the various decorations. The visit to the tree, laden with brightly covered packages, and the sit with Santa Claus opened to a different scene of happy children playing with newly received toys, shooting pop guns, launching parachuters and blowing transparent, soapy bubbles.

These bubbles continued to fly during the G.A.A. Christmas program, which was put on especially for the children. Sesame Street characters, reindeer and other animals came to life in the Twelve Days of Christmas skit. Further entertainment included music with the famous "Humazoo Band", made up of teachers and coaches on kazoos, making another holiday appearance.

The assembly and day came to an end as the first graders reboarded their buses with toys and happy memories. This good cheer was the main objective behind the week as brightness was brought to the school through the decorations and activities, to needy families through the canned food drive, and to the children through their visit. All this came about through the unselfish efforts and hard work of the students and staff of Mariner High School.

Blood day a success

The annual Medical Explorer blood drawing took place Tuesday, January 8, mid snow and few students. Despite these factors, though, a large amount of blood was received, about 65 units worth.

Many of these units were designated by the donors for Lorna Rogers, Mrs. Sue Roger's daughter who was previously involved in an accident and was in need of blood. The other units were taken by the Snohomish County Blood Bank for other needy people.

The blood drawing was put on through the participation of the Medical Explorer Club members and people from the blood bank who were trained physicians. All these people took care of the donors and gave them orange juice and donuts to help them revitalize their systems after their contributions.

The drawing lasted the whole day and was the first of two drawings to take place during the year. Curtis Linderman, a club member, summed up the drawing in saying, "We expected to see fewer people because of the snow, but we ended up having more blood than we did in last year's miniterm drawing."

Classes end early

Students got a little relief this year when the school day was shortened, going into effect at the conclusion of the first term. However, this decrease was not by much, only five minutes, bringing the day to a close at 2:20, instead of 2:25.

To what was this respite attributed to? The students' good behavior? No, in fact it had nothing to do with them at all. What influenced the cut of school time was the staff and teachers' contract. These staff members were not being paid for the extra five minutes and the contract stated that the school day would not be lengthened after the signing of the paper, which it was. So, the answer to the situation was to shorten the time spent in school, which decision brought no objections from the students!

This time change was really hardly noticeable to those at school since only a few minutes were cut from each class. The only real affect it had was to cause everyone to have to re-learn the times that each class got out, just when the old ones were able to be remembered!

Snow closes school

As the school day reached an end, little flakes of whiteness descended quietly upon Mariner on Monday, January 7, much to the delight of students and teachers. These little specks were to continue, developing into the biggest snowfall to hit the Seattle, Everett and surrounding area in years.

School continued the following day but with a minimum of students attending. This seemed to be the condition of most school districts open in Western Washington. Due to this and more snowfall, school was cancelled for the following two days.

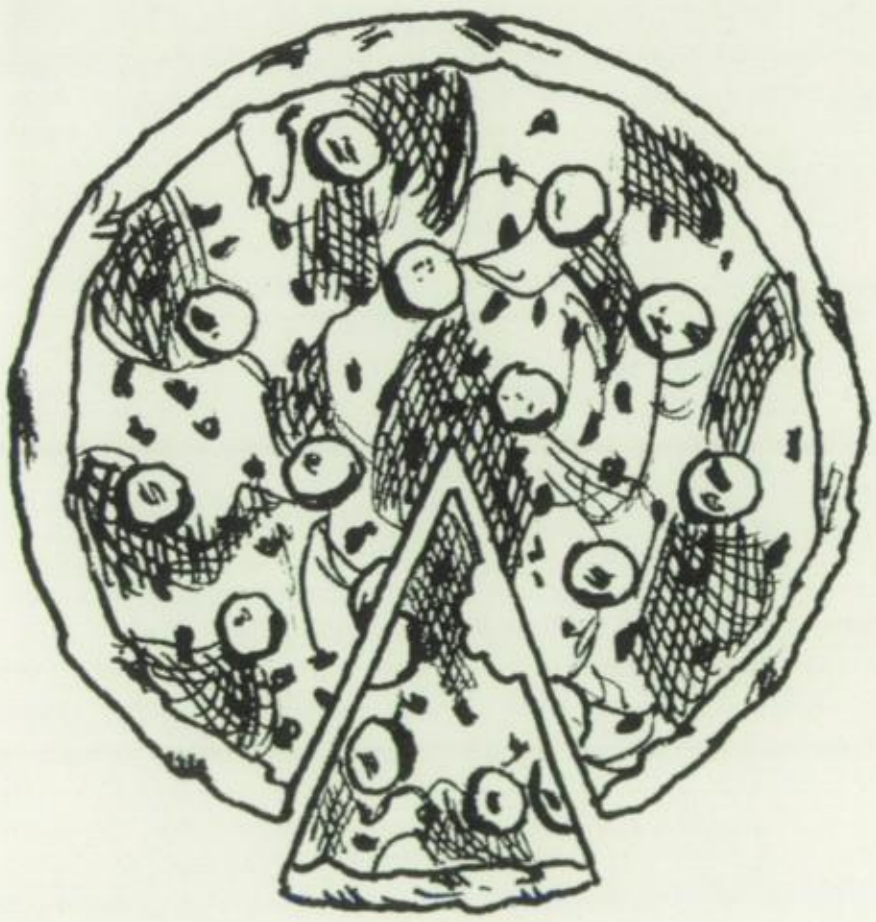
Enveloped in whiteness, students had to forget their despair over no school by participating in such activities as sledding, snowball fights, and just playing in the snow. Sledders could be seen at nearby hills and golf courses enjoying the slopes. The snow affected all, as people could be seen hiking to nearby grocery stores for supplies and cross-country skiers appeared all around the area.

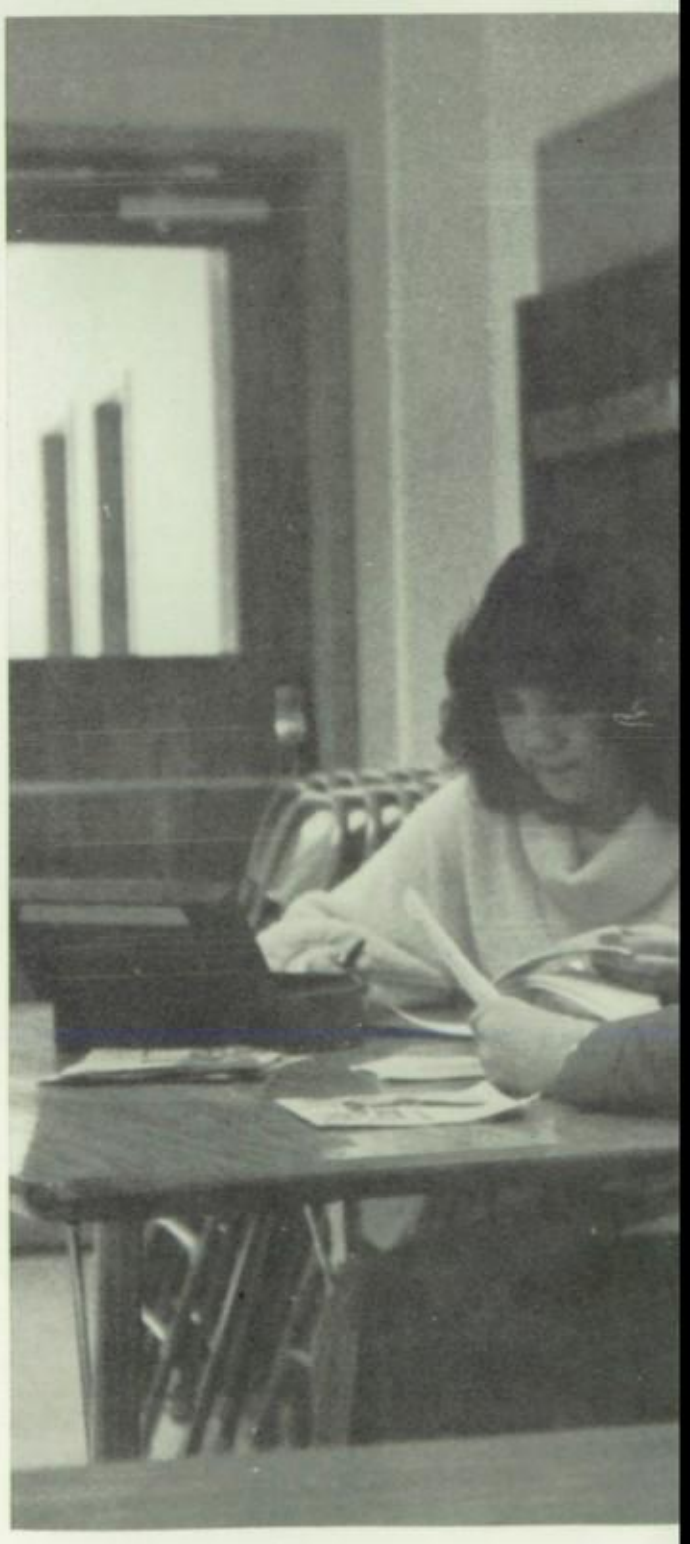
The total snowfall varied in different areas, the area around Mariner receiving between 5 and 7 inches, but whatever the level, the result was the same—no school! However, most good things have to come to an end! Temperatures rose and school resumed on Friday, and the short-term vacation ended.

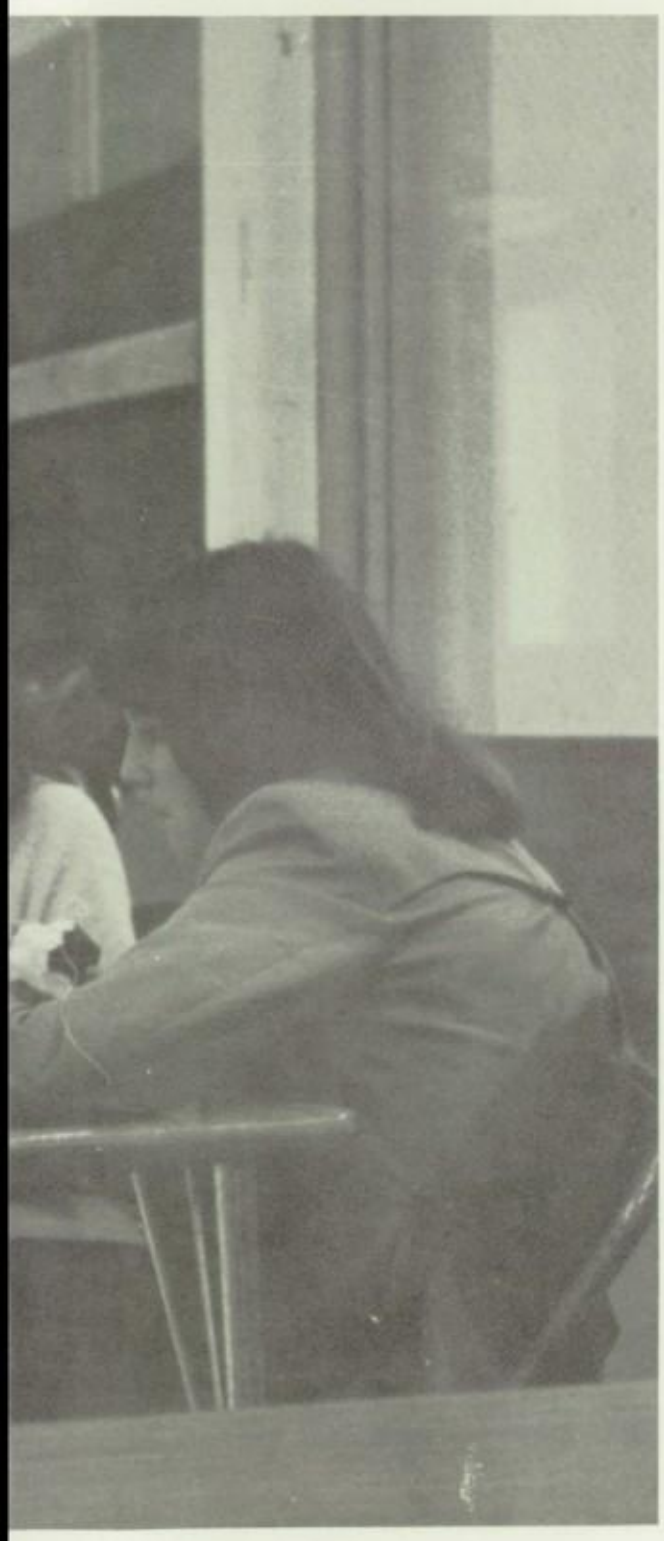
Gymnasts show skill

Pep Assemblies took a new turn this winter as the Girls' Gymnastics Team provided the entertainment for one, demonstrating their moves and abilities. Coach Erv Ellis was on hand helping and narrating the presentation.

The pep assembly was not only different but was a first in the history of Mariner gymnastics. Coach Ellis said that the purpose of the presentation was to show the student body that the young gymnasts are capable of doing more than is accustomed to in the P.E. class and to try to develop more appeal for more spectators at the meets. In summing the event up he said, "I thought the idea really went over well. The student body was really attentive during it and I think that they were surprised at the skill level of the girls doing the demonstration."







Tolo brings "Winter Romance"

Winter was in the air as couples flocked to the Christmas Tolo held December 8, in the commons. The theme, "Winter Romance", set the mood for the night as the band, Shifter, provided the music.

Decorated in blue and white streamers, the commons came alive with music and busy voices. On the windows overlooking the pool were paper hearts on which each couple's name was written in glitter, giving them a keepsake to remember the night by.

The dance added to the spirit of the season and provided for all a night of music and fun. It was the opening of an exciting season and the last dance of the eventful '79 year.

Who turned out the lights?

Lights went out January 29 as the school's electricity was lost due to a high demand of power in the area. This demand was caused by extremely cold temperatures, causing the power consumption to rise, thus putting a strain on power supply plants. This outage effected Mariner's students in various ways.

Cold and dark were the words that described the conditions in the school. When the electricity went out the heat did also and classes and halls began to get cold.

Those who were most effected by the power outage were the A.S.B. candidates who were involved in an election assembly when the lights died. They went on with their speeches, though, and were commended by Mrs. Jean Boris for their courage in doing so.

The outage did provide another unexpected holiday for the students. This one didn't have to be made up at a later date though, since school wasn't called off until the minimum time limit for a school day was met. The sunny but cold day soon beckoned students as they were released at about eleven o'clock.

The day could be said to be a day of losses: loss of energy, loss of amount of work done, and loss of school time.

Honor Society Sells pizza

Mamma Mea, what a pizza! Alfy's pizzas made their way into the lunchroom and stomachs of Mariner eaters. This came about through Honor Society who sold them during both lunches.

Used as a fund raiser for scholarships, the pizza sales occured at various times throughout the year, beginning after first semester. To help the club gain money for a scholarship, Alfys gave them so much money on every pizza sold, and if a quota of $500 was made then they would match that scholarship with another of the same amount.

Honor Society members got involved with these sales in the areas of advertisement, sales and distribution. Of these fund raising events, club president, Phil Myers explained, "The Pizza sale was a good way to get Honor Society members involved and also make money for the two $500 scholarships."

Gasohol becomes a reality

The United States saw the use of gasohol becoming a reality as oil supplies fell and prices soared. But, closer to home, the citizens of Everett saw their city's vehicles take advantage of the new combination.

This combination, as the name professes, was a blend of alchohol and gasoline, the alcohol making up twenty percent of the fluid. What resulted was a liquid fuel that cut down on the amount of oil consumed nationally and also burned more cleanly than straight gasoline did.

The city of Everett took advantage of these features and began to use gasohol in the city owned vehicles. More accurately, though, the city cars used "Methylhol" which was a combination of methyl and gasoline.

As saving energy became a main issue in the U.S. gasohol, and other related fuels, were put into use. Everett showed its efforts in helping the national situation in using this new fuel and thus saving oil.

Trouble brews in Middle East

Outside the peaceful borders of the United States, world turmoil brought tensions and an awareness of international relations upon the students. Conflicts in the Middle East drew in the U.S. and continued to be the main issue throughout the school year.

This turmoil began on November 4th, 1979. The setting was Iran which had a new leader, Ayatollah Khomeini and was in a state of confusion. Shah Mohammed Resa Pahlavi's government had been overrun by Khomeini's regime and he had fled for his life. Because of health problems and because our government supported his because it was non-communist, the U.S. allowed the Shah to come into this country for medical care.

With these conditions, the trouble began. During the Shah's reign he had suppressed the people in order to maintain his power and supposedly killed a lot of people. Iranian students, even after the Shah was overthrown, were extremely irate and wanted him back so that they could try him for what he'd done. So, when he entered the U.S. they seized the United State's embassy in Tehran, on November 4th, and took those working there hostage, demanding the Shah in exchange for their release.

President Jimmy Carter was put in a tricky position with this one. He couldn't just leave the Americans hostage in Tehran, but then he couldn't let our country be pushed around by another. So, he refused to send the Shah back to Iran, but continued to do all that he could to get the hostages back. This included placing a trade embargo on Iran and he asked all other countries to participate in it also.

The Shah, meanwhile, concluded his health related stay in the United States and then left, making Panama his new home. This action, however, did not bring about the fifty American's release.

The situation remained the same for several months. Despite Carter's efforts the Iranians would not give in. Protesting students were seen marching in front of the embassy with anti-U.S. and anti-Carter signs. But at the beginning of the new decade things began to happen that started a change.

One of these events was the election of Abolhassan Bani Sadr to the position of president of Iran. The Ayatollah still had the higher authority but Sadr did have important power. He was previously fired by Khomeini as foreign minister because he was too conciliatory in his dealings with the U.S. After he was elected he said that his number one priority was to clear up the hostage problem and things began to look affirmatively towards the hostages' release.

Perhaps another factor in beginning to move Iran to releasing the fifty Americans was Russia's move into Afghanistan. Soviet troops poured into Afghanistan in attempts to gain control there, which brought resistance from the Afghanis and fighting broke out. With Russian troops ten miles from their border Iran began to get edgey, especially when the man they looked to for leadership, Khomeini, was admitted to a hospital with heart problems. If Khomeini died, it would have been very easy for the Soviets to take over Iran since it would most likely be in a state of confusion without a leader. The U.S. was concerned about this too because if this happened we would lose an ally, an ally on the grounds of being an anti-communistic form of government, to the Soviets.

Whether these were factors that got the ball rolling towards the hostages' release or not, winter came to a close with a special U.N. committee headed for Iran to judge the Shah and work for the Americans' release. This release was slated for after May.

When one looks back on the 79 - 80 year, Iran and the hostages will be remembered as a major part in it.

Faculty cagers lose to DJs

The Mariner faculty went to the boards Wednesday night, February 20, against the team from 14 RKO Radio. The game was basketball and it went to the "DJ"s with a score of 70-79.

Suiting up for Mariner were Mr. John Hansen, Mr. Tim Mead, Mr. Jerry Morris, Mr. Ted Hiemstra, Mr. Bill Ardissano, Mr. George Elginfritz, Mr. Jim McCullock, Mr. Erv Ellis, Mr. Mike Ryan, and Mr. Brian Schenk.

The faculty put forth a lot of effort but was no match for the KRKO team. Well, teachers, maybe next time!

Olympics highlight winter

Lake Placid, New York, was the place to be at or to watch during February of this year. It was the site of the 1980 Winter Olympics held the 12th through the 24th.

Athletes from all over the world gathered together to compete for their countries in winter sport events. These days were especially significant to the U.S. team because they were not going to participate in the Summer Olympics in Moscow because of the Soviets' aggressive move into Afghanistan and their refusal to leave, which prompted President Jimmy Carter's decision to boycott the games.

One highlight of the winter competition was Eric Heiden, the U.S. speed skater, winning five gold medals which was a first in Olympic history. Another was the U.S. hockey team upseting the Russians, who were favored to win, and going on to gain the gold medal.

Everyone around the country was able to take part in and follow the events through nightly telecasts and the newspaper. The Olympics brought everyone together as all felt the thrill of victory and the disappointment of defeat, but still retained a felling of pride in the United States' athletes.

FFA Week prepares for progress

"Preparing for progress" was the theme for this year's National FFA Week. Along with 495,000 other people throughout the country, Mariner and its chapters participated in this program by putting up displays and selling plants for February 18 - 22.

The purpose of this week was to give those not in FFA an idea of what it's all about. The different chapters in Mariner's FFA put up banners which they had won in competitions, and horticulture supported a plant sale which brought in an amount of $250.

The National FFA Week booklet best described FFA and their work in saying, " . . . across this broad land of ours . . . FFA members are preparing for their future. Their organization belives in learning to do . . . doing to learn . . . learning to live . . . and living to serve. It all means progress."

Mariner celebrates V-Day

Valentine's Day came in the midst of a week of events centered around this holiday this year. These events included various dress-up days, the Valentine's pep assembly, and the Valentine's Dance.

The week began with jersey day, where everyone wore athletic jerseys, and ski day followed with different ski outfits. Thursday was the big V-Day and Friday was blue and gold spirit day with the pep assembly at the end.

This assembly was not only for pep but was also the "crowning ceremony" for the kings and queens of hearts. Each class voted on a guy and girl who had the most school spirit and during the assembly these royalties were announced and came down to receive their crowns of tinseled hearts and to reign for the assembly.

The Valentine's Dance rounded up the week with the band "Hard Times" providing the music. Valentines Week was a week of casual dress-ups and "Heart" felt fun. And royalties Jill Romo and Kent Pearson, freshmen, Kim Corrigan and Bruce Best, sophomores, Tracy Burgess and Brent Webber, juniors, and Rose Palmer and Ben Thomas, seniors, can attest to that.

New Color Guard achieves success

If you were a spectator at one of our winter basketball games, you may have noticed the Winter Knight Color Guard performing during half-time. The 14 member guard was formed to perform at games and to compete with other shcools.

After winning first place at their first competition, the guard was getting a glimpse of the success to follow. "The guard is one of the top guards in the state and that surprised us because this is just our first year," stated guard leader Patty Dupler.

In the future, the guard planned to perform at football games and possibly go on tour with the marching band. And if they kept up the same hard work they must have been successful!

Dear Mariner High School:

Looked at positively, the world is your oyster...if you prefer, you may substitute clam or mussel. A naysayer would cry Doom at the energy crisis, the conservation crisis, inflation, unemployment. They are all horrendous nightmares, to be sure, but never have conditions made it so apparent that the old ways are either insufficient, inefficient or just plain don't work. The world desperately needs you, your brains, and your ideas to save it. The age-old cliche "That's the way it's done" must give way to "How would you do it?" Good luck!

Along with spring came the sun and fun. Students were filled with an abundance of energy.

It was spring sports and finally mini-term that gave kids a chance to release their excess energy. The baseball and soccer fields, golf courses, tennis courts, the sailboats, the ice skates, and the bowling alleys, everything was in use and the students had a whole new outlook on life. Every day was filled with something new and exciting; something better than yesterday. We were living for the thrill of today, and were electrified with the thoughts of tomorrow.

MARINER HIGH SCHOOL

As you mark this important milestone in your lives, I congratulate you on your achievements.

Our Nation and our world need your energy and idealism to renew the constant struggle to finally defeat man's ancient enemies -- hunger, disease, ignorance, oppression -- and to build a world in which all people have freedom, justice, opportunity and hope. While years of schooling do not provide complete solutions to these challenges, they can give some of the tools, as well as the courage, humility and perseverance, to seek those answers.

Your pursuit of knowledge and skills will not end here, whether you begin your careers now or go on to further study. I hope that as you pursue these new endeavors you will be conscious of the tremendous opportunities freedom makes possible, and that you will take your responsibilities as citizens seriously.

SPRING

Improvement sparks their seasons

At first no one expected much, but after a few matches the girls' and boys' bowling teams were looking good. The girls went on to capture second place in the State Tournament. The boys were not as successful though, ending their season with 15 wins and 27 losses. However, Coach Peightel said, "The boys team did fulfill their goal, which was to improve."

As golf season opened the success of the team looked hopeful. Yet bad weather early in the year gave the golfers a hard time on the wet and muddy courses. They were "young and inexperienced, but they were really a nice bunch of kids, and they kept positive attitudes towards seasons play," stated Coach Ryan.

Starting off with 25 kids was great. But as the season progressed that number became limited. Only six players were picked for Varsity, and the next four or five for JV. The remainder continued to turn out, working hard, improving, and constantly hoping for a spot on the team.

As the bowling and golf seasons closed, they had accomplished their goals. They had improved their skills and they had gone far beyond their expectations.

Boys' track sprints ahead

Over 80 people turned out for boys' track this year. Those who couldn't endure the pain, the weather, and the hard driving turnouts left, while those that could stayed to form the most finely meshed group of individuals in Mariner's track history.

It was a young team, the majority of it inexperienced underclassmen. But it was people like freshmen Scott Willis, Dave McFaddin, Roger Strohm, sophomores Pat Heebert, Carl Hauenstein, and juniors Jim Sundal and Paul Dire who proved that this team was as strong if not stronger than any other team in Wesco. Several returning seniors including Sean Sutherland, Dale Elder, Terry Latham, and Jon Rembold came through as team leaders and helped add to the strength of the team.

After totally demolishing the opposing teams in the first few meets, Mariner proved its excitement was because of the unbelievable amounts of optimism, enthusiasm, and team spirit which abounded throughout the season, keeping spirits high no matter how many push-ups or sit-ups were done during warm-ups.

Because of their excellent attitude towards hard work, the team members rose to the occasion and went on to a highly successful season.

Girls' track sets high goals

With high hopes and great ambition the girls' track team started its season with the goal of placing in the top five at districts.

"I'm really pleased with the girls' attitude and enthusiasm towards this season," stated Coach Ellis. "This is a very competitive group of girls."

The team had a lot of spirited participants. Among them were returning letterman Pam Hoelzle and long distance runner Karen Christie.

"With the variety of skill shown by the freshman, the team has all the qualities needed to be successful," concluded Coach Ellis.

Tennis bounces back

With a surge of new blood, the Boy's Tennis team had a very consistent season. The new additions included their new coach, Mr. Joe Dillie, and two outstanding new freshmen players. There also was a large amount of players returning to the courts.

One of the team's main goals was planning for next year's team. "We've got two freshmen on Varsity as well as a returning Sophomore. I think next year will be better," said Marc Caldart, a key varsity member.

The team's new coach, Joe Dillie, said of the season's play, "I feel that it was a pretty good season considering that we were just getting used to working with new people. But just wait until next year!"

Fun Filled Season.

Softball is a team sport, but it also takes the involvement and efforts of each individual player. "We played well as a team because each girl was willing to pull her own weight." stated Varsity Coach Thorstenson.

It was the players' spirit and enthusiasm that became the high point of each game. Their main objective was to have fun; and that's what they did!

J.V. Coach, Ms. Martin, commented that the team mainly had a "skill building" purpose. Whether they won or lost a game, made no difference, it was a team effort.

Their consistent hitting average was definitely the ultimate strength of the J.V. team. But their abundancy of excitement frequently caused the players to lose their concentration.

Both coaches shared the same feelings towards the season in saying, "They were a really fun group of kids, and the season was filled with lots of smiles and grins."

Soccer settles down

Mariner soccer has had a different coaching staff each year for the past three seasons. But it looks like Coach Hoiby and Ardissano are here to stay.

This was much more than an ordinary season. The team was on probation and it was one of Coach Hoiby's goals to "gain the respect of the league and to clear up the bad reputation Mariner soccer had had in past years."

Despite the players having to again get used to a new coach, in addition to proving themselves to the rest of the league, the team managed to win half of their games and at one time even had a shot at the playoffs.

J.V. had a good year. "They were a very coachable group and they played well together," said Coach Ardissano.

The varsity was led by nine seniors. In fact, both coaches will tell you that maturity was the teams greatest asset. But when asked what this means for next year both coaches replied, "Next year we basically start over."

Baseball shows improvement

With speed and perseverance the Baseball team had a very promising season. The team was led by Scott and Eugene Wilson as well as returning lettermen Jim House, Scott Zimmerman and Bob Slosson.

"The team as a whole has greatly improved," said Ben Herbert, Varsity Coach, "their speed has increased, they've got a better attitude, and they are definitely working harder."

"We've done really good so far, but we haven't been hitting well enough and our defense could use some work," commented Varsity member Scott Zimmerman.

The players had a strategy of "just going for the win." This strategy, along with their determination definitely contributed to the team's substantial improvement.

The J.V. team improved this season despite the fact that some players had been moved up to Varsity to even out some rough spots in the defense.

Bill Costello, J.V. coach, commented, "it was really a good season and I was surprised at the progress we made."

Freshmen show spirit

Those yelling, jumping girls in blue uniforms at the freshmen boys football and basketball games were not mere ecstatic supporters, but were the freshmen cheerleaders. The nine girls rallied the teams on, along with holding other responsibilities including G.A.A. concession stands.

Ms. Ricketts felt that the year was a good one and she was really proud of the freshman girls. Although the boys' basketball team won only one game, the girls never gave up and continued supporting them throughout their season. This depicts true success.

Spring Dance flops

Every year there are some failures and 1980's came in the form of a Spring Dance. It was held in the commons on March 21st.

The dance, sponsored by DECA, was a new event to Mariner. The band was Mildstone, and their crew combined with the 30 or 35 students attending the dance made up a very minimal attendance.

The Spring Dance was a new idea but had a little to be desired, namely people. What it did have, though, was room for lots of improvement!

Auctung! Es ist Deutsch

German Club again attended the annual German Convention held March 15 at Mount Vernon High School. This event included schools from all over the state and offered a wide range of activities for the students to participate in.

These activities, which showed the various aspects of the German culture, included competitions, classes, a German dinner, and a folk dance. The competition lied in the areas of sauerkraut eating, yodeling and quiz bowls. The classes included fun activities like calligraphy, egg painting, cooking, and baking black cherry forest cakes.

The convention was described as being a very enjoyable experience by one club member. Mariner students made new friends through this experience and learned about the German culture and how other schools taught the course. But most importantly, they learned how they eat!

Hi-Q achieves high honors

Mariner's Scott Hi-Q team excelled this year, gaining a final berth in the 1980 Spring competition. Along with this rank an award of money was given to the school, the use of which was decided upon by the team.

The team was made up of Captain Merril Moffat, Ed Amato, Jill Corken, Roy Clothier, alternates Doug Schultz and Jay Patterson, with Mr. John Orr and Mrs. Janet Irby advising. This year was the first time that these two teachers had advised and it was also the first time that a team from Mariner had made it to the finals. Mr. Orr attributed this success to the hard work that the students engaged in, studying books, plays and other material.

This success could have also been attributed to how each member was complimentary of each other. There were members who were very knowledgeable in most of the areas, except for science, which was their only weak area.

Mr. Orr expressed how proud he was of the team and the success they had achieved in becoming one of the top three teams of the area's high schools. This honor had already stirred up interest for next year's team which would have a tough act to follow.

Spanish class visits Mexico

While most kids spent Spring Vacation at home around Everett, a group of Spanish students went abroad and spent the week in Mexico. The group was led by Spanish teacher, Miss Lynn Rainey, and was made up of three other chaperones and seven Spanish 560/780 students.

Highlights of the trip included the bullfights, the Alcapulco Bay cruise, the Ballet Folklorico, and just having plain old fun. There were some low points, however, and these included riding the crowded subways and getting sunburned and sick.

The group felt that it was a fun experience to spend time down in Mexico and also felt it to be a learning experience. Senior Jane Boley summed it up in saying, "We had a good time and learned a lot. We'll never forget it!"

Volcano comes alive

Mount St. Helens, one of Washington's three volcanos, threw off its sleepy state and began to rumble on March 27th. Located in the southwestern part of the state, the mountain began to shake with tremors and spew forth steam and ash.

As Mount St. Helens began to show signs of eruption, scientists and experts began to record and measure the quakes and predicted an early eruption.[1] Nearby homes were evacuated as a precaution to this possible lava flow.

Spring was spent waiting for new news as to what the volcano would do, whether it would erupt or if it would return to its former state. Not only were the residents of the state concerned, but everyone else joined in as the whole nation watched.

Students exchange cultures

Mariner gained a new student and sent two away through the exchange student program this year. Jill Corken came to Everett from Bangor, Ireland, and senior, Joe Sohlberg went to Johannesburg, South Africa, while junior Becky Teeters left the U.S. for Bolivia.

As ambassadors from their own countries, these three students were able to travel abroad to help spread goodwill amongst other lands. Their foreign experiences broadened their horizons and helped them view their own countries with a clearer and different perspective.

Prom accents Spring

Prom came in blues, yellows, pinks and white to the Paine Field Officers' Club on April 26th. The band was The North and they played a variety of music ranging from soft, slow songs to fast, more livelier tunes.

A wistful mood was set by the theme, "Reminiscing", which was especially meaningful to the seniors, as they were nearing the conclusion of their high school years.

The Spring season came alive in music and romance with the Junior-Senior Prom, sponsored by the junior class. It was a special occasion to be added to the memories of those who attended it, giving them food for future reminiscing.

Students gain political understanding

Not only did 1980 bring in a new decade, it also brought about the presidential elections. Mariner was on top of this with the Political Science class. Selected students prepared year long to participate in a mock republican convention that was held in Portland, Oregon on May 13, 14, and 15.

The class was taught by Mrs. Betty Hill, Mrs. Ann Kashiwa and Mr. John Hansen, with the help of aid Mrs. Kris Vandersander, and student teachers, Mr. Ted Karlsen and Mr. George Elginfritz. They helped the students learn about the different aspects of the government and how they would represent their state, Massachusettes, in the convention. The state chairpersons to the convention, who helped lead the class, were Sheila Jones, Lisa Peterson, Phil Myers and Reynold Tancretti.

The class and convention offered a means by which students could get a taste of what the government is like and how it is run. It also may have helped them in deciding on their careers for the future.

Mini-term concludes year

Everyone knew that when Mini-term finally arrived, the year was almost over. This year's mini-term came the same way but with a few new classes and a new attendance policy.

The new classes included courses on self-awareness in "Your Erroneous Zones", and law in "Basic Law, What are my Legal Rights." Most of the other regular classes continued as in years past.

A new attendance policy was put into use to cut down on the amount of skipping done in mini-term. What it entailed was that the names of those not in first period were passed around to all the teachers and if those absent students showed up unexcused later on in the day they would be caught. With this, students thought twice before deciding to enjoy the sun during the school day.

Mini-term was casual time full of fun and interesting classes. But as June arrived, another chapter was concluded in the lives of every student at Mariner High School.

Dear Mariner Students:

The present we're living in used to be the future. When students of the past were promised, "The future is yours!", the future meant progress, and progress meant unlimited expansion; using more and more resources; conquering the earth and the universe with our advancing technology.

Now, in this future of the past, we face dwindling natural resources and local and global human problems that are proving tough to tackle, notwithstanding our technological maturity.

The future is not so clearly defined today in the terms of the past. Growth may mean staying the same size; progress may mean holding on to the older quality; technology may be the science of the small, not the large.

The future is not what it used to be. But it is still yours. And I feel good about that.

With best wishes,

Charles Royer

The ads revenue provided the finances necessary to produce a yearbook. As one of our staff members went out to sell ads he was usually tense as he anxiously awaited the decision of the business person. It was not easy, and it wasn't a job filled with glory, but it was essential.

Yet these patrons were fantastic. They greeted us kindly and took a great interest in what we, the young people of today, were doing. They were excited about what we were learning and the achievements we had made in high school. We were young and ambitious. We were imaginative and exploding with new ideas. The enthusiasm and generosity of our patrons was unbelievable. They were ready to support us and the futures that we were building.

Thanks!

A whole bunch of people went out of their ways to help us put together this yearbook, and we appreciate it!

Thanks to Steve at Pacific Art-ery for going over the design of our book and offering suggestions. Thanks also to the Everett Holiday Inn for letting us use their reception desk for drops and pickups.

Thanks, Ms. Hill and Ms. Fanin and all the people in the office for putting up with our finding people for pictures, checking name spellings, and signing out of school for ad selling. And thanks to the faculty for the class interruptions for club and team pictures.

Thanks to Dr. Torrey for his support, and to Mr. Campbell for keeping us in line and making sure we stayed within our budget (sort of).

Over at Herff-Jones, who prints our books, Shirley Coleman made sure everything got done just the way we wanted it—thanks.

Three people literally spent hours with us. Don Wagonblast really helped out with extra pictures when we got in deadline pinches.

Burt Durham, also with Herff Jones, visited us every few weeks and patiently and skillfully helped us with the problems that inevitably came up.

Finally, we couldn't have done our book without Dave White and Northwest Color Photo Service. All our photo materials came from Northwest, and Dave also took many vital photos.

Our generation is overflowing with energy! We've become stronger and more independent.

We're alive and on the move into the future!

We'll make tomorrow ours. We'll fill it with excitement and enthusiasm and live each day to it's fullest!

We're ready for the 80's! Are they ready for us?

Exciting year for annual staff

Four years ago when I was a new member to the staff, so was our advisor Mr. Fulcher. Somehow this one special man had managed to touch each one of our lives and unite us as one big family. He brought excitement and laughter to the staff. What used to be long hours of tedious work suddenly became enjoyable. He showed us how to take great pride in our work, but more importantly, he showed us how to have fun. Words can never say how much the staff appreciates him not only as an advisor, but as a friend.

Many spare hours were put into the production of this book in order to make it unique. We wanted something different, something that was a reflection of the student body. We wanted it to be alive and full of excitement. None of this would have been possible without the help and understanding of every staff member. You guys were terrific. At times I may have picked apart your layouts and copy, but you hung in there and we stuck it out together.

Last, I would like to say thank you to the student body. It's your story that is within this book. It's your laughter and enthusiasm that we tried to capture. Never let it fade out and always be alive and on the move!

Mr. Koepp sets an example

Room E226 houses a very special person at Mariner. Mr. Steve Koepp presides here over the chemistry 120 and 340 classes.

Mr. Koepp was a charter member of Mariner's staff and has over the past ten years contributed his time and energy unselfishly to make Mariner a better place for the student body. He has developed a unique style which makes his students want to learn. He teaches with funny and imaginative stories that make even qualitative and quantitative chemical analyses fun to study. He consistently strives to make his subject interesting and new for his students.

Mr. Koepp also contributes to the quality of Mariner by serving as chairperson of the Curriculum Development Committee. Under his leadership, students, parents, and faculty members work together to improve the educational offerings at Mariner.

Finally, Mr. Koepp has been for the past two years advisor to the senior class.

Mr. Koepp strives to make things alive and exciting for Mariner students. As we've tried to make this annual reflect the excitement people can have for life, we salute Mr. Koepp and his enthusiasm by dedicating the 1980 Voyager to him.
